MINE WORKERS AND OPERATORS TO ADJUST THEIR OWN DIFFERENCES

[illegible] Strike [illegible] Proceedings [illegible]

By Associated Press.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 21.—The mineworkers, through their representatives, have agreed with the mine owners to attempt to adjust the differences existing between them outside the anthracite coal strike commission. The proposition was made on a compromise basis, and negotiations it is expected will at once be entered upon with a reasonable hope of settlement, with the aid of the arbitrators. The rough proposition which is to form the basis of negotiations is a 10 per cent. increase in wages, a nine-hour day and trade agreements between the miners and the company by which they are employed. The only one of the four demands not couched upon is that of the weighing of coal by the legal ton.

While both sides have expressed a willingness to settle their differences among themselves, it is not to be construed that it carried with it the acceptance of the terms proposed. They are mentioned only as a basis, it is understood, from which a settlement is to be effected. It is possible that the foundation already laid can be wrecked by either party holding out too strongly against some question, and thus leave the whole matter in the hands of the commissioners, who in the meantime will act as a sort of a board of conciliation rather than as a board of arbitration.

Few persons were aware that an attempt would be made of an outside settlement until it was practically so intimated by Judge Gray, the chairman of the commission who read a carefully prepared announcement from the "bench."

The move, one of the most important in the whole history of the coal strike, created a mild sensation when it became known. The surprise was all the greater from the fact that numerous persons, from the president of the United States down, and many organizations from the national Civic federation to the small boards of trade of the small mining towns, had failed to bring the two parties together. It was all brought about by both sides seeing that the proceedings before the commission would be interminable, and in the interminglings of the lawyers for both sides the outside agreement proposition was broached and taken up.

It cannot be officially stated which made the proposition first. The attorneys for both sides are averse to talking, but those who were inclined to say something differ in their statements. An attorney for one of the railroads said it came from the miners' side, while one lawyer for the miners said it came from the operators. Another representative of the miners said it was a "spontaneous proposition." It is generally believed, however, that the operators were the first to make the proposition. Wayne MacVeagh, who carried on such a brilliant cross-examination of President Mitchell, is given credit for bringing about the present situation. He went to New York after he finished with Mr. Mitchell and had a conference with certain persons connected with the coal industry, among them, it is rumored, J. P. Morgan. He was in New York today in connection with the matter.

The commissioners were informed of the new turn of affairs last night and acquiesced in the proposed arrangement. The subject did not directly come up in the public hearing today and the adjournment proposition was made ostensibly to permit both sides to complete their work of preparing documentary evidence.

Clarence S. Darrow of Chicago, one of Mr. Mitchell's attorneys, brought the matter out when, near the close of today's session, he suggested that the miners be given a little more time to prepare their evidence. The miners wanted to present the duebills or the wage statement of thousands of miners, running back for several years and they found that the task of presenting them in a proper manner was a stupendous one. They also wanted to carefully examine the company books and this, too, would take considerable time.

While Mr. Darrow was saying this, the commissioners were all attention and no one outside of them and a few representatives of each side of the case knew what was coming. Judge Gray in reply to Mr. Darrow, said that the commission would be very glad to co-operate in bringing about the accomplishment of the end by which the miners could have time to examine the books of the company.

"We have been aware for some time," he said, "that while the testimony that has been adduced has been very interesting, and I will not say that it has not been of value, yet it has not yet borne directly on the points at issue between the parties to this controversy.

"According to the suggestion just made by counsel that an interval of time be taken for the preparation of the documentary evidence and for a possible agreement as to certain facts and figures which would forward the work of the commission, the commission desires to express the hope that an effort will be made by the parties to come to an agreement upon nearly all, if not all, the matters now in controversy and that they will adopt the suggestion heretofore made by the commission to counsel on both sides, that we aid them in such an effort by our conciliatory offices. It seems to us that many of the conditions complained of—and which have been the subject of the legislation—might be better remedied by the parties to the controversy approaching the subject in the proper spirit and with the purpose of fairly adjusting them. We hope, gentlemen, that the interval of time to be granted may be availed of with this end in view. Of course in the meantime we shall proceed with the work before us as we have it."

After this announcement, Everett Warren of counsel for the Pennsylvania Coal company and the Hillside Coal & Iron company, stated the difficulty of his company in being able to present their payrolls and other evidence in a brief time and approved of an adjournment of a week or 10 days. This was all agreed to and in order to give all parties an opportunity to confer on the state of affairs an adjournment was taken at 12:45 until tomorrow morning. It is probable the suggestion for a week or 10 days' adjournment will be adopted. During the entire proceedings the matter of a settlement was not spoken of except what was contained in the commission's announcement.

It was learned tonight by the correspondent of the Associated Press that all the large companies have not yet assented to the proposed outside agreement but that in all probability they will consent and continue work as a unit as they did during the strike. The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company, it is understood, has not yet been heard from on the matter. Those who are said to be in the agreement scheme are the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, the Lehigh Valley, the Delaware & Hudson and the Erie company, which controls the Pennsylvania Coal company and the Hillside Coal and Iron company. The attorneys for some of the other companies are hourly expecting to hear from the head officials of the corporation they represent.

There is a wide difference of opinion as to whether the proposal to settle the differences among themselves will meet with success. As a general proposition it is believed by the officers that it will succeed but that some of the controversial points will have to go before the arbitrators. It has been realized that at least two of the four demands of the miners—that of the uniform wage scale and the weighing of coal—cannot be satisfactorily settled in the hearing room, but must be fixed at the mines. There are more than 260 collieries, and there are hardly any two of them alike.

It is argued by the operators that there must be a different scale for each one on account of the varying conditions and that a uniform wage scale, which is one of the miners' demands, is impossible. Regarding the weighing of coal, the operators say that it would be impossible to grant the demands as presented by the miners because of the non-existence of machinery or system by which a miner can be paid for the 2,440 pounds of prepared coal. It will have to be done, they say, through the present system of averages.

The proposition is to have the mine workers make contracts with their employers only, and not as it is done in the bituminous states, where the operators have state or district organizations which recognize the United Mine Workers of America. The proposed contract with each company does not carry with it a recognition of the union, and on that ground it is not likely that the two parties will be able to settle without resort to the arbitration commission. It is not doubted that whatever agreement, if one is reached, will be approved by the commission. The agreement, however, will have to be one that will provide for a reasonably sure permanent settlement. The instructions given to the commissioners by President Roosevelt when he handed the case to them to settle, are explicit. In these instructions he said:

"You will endeavor to establish the relations between the employers and wage workers in the anthracite fields on a just and permanent basis, and as far as possible do away with any causes for the recurrence of such difficulties as those which you have been called in to settle."

THE DAY'S TESTIMONY

By Associated Press.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 21.—The examination of Dr. R. H. Gibbons of Scranton, was immediately resumed when the anthracite strike commission met today. He said that the occupation of a miner subjects a man to pleurisy, gout, neuralgia, asthma, bronchitis, sciatica and other diseases. He believed the day would come when men will be subjected to medical examination before they undertake mining. Children, he said, who have suffered from any form of disease of the respiratory passages, bronchitis or pneumonia, should never be permitted in the mines under the age of 15 years, because they should have a chance to eliminate the predisposing factor in the case of so-called miner's asthma.

Dr. Gibbons then described the surface indications of miner's asthma, his testimony in this respect not differing essentially from that given by other expert witnesses.

On further examination, Dr. Gibbons said he did not mean to be understood as saying that miners form an unhealthy class, but that they are debilitated and run down. He spoke of the necessity for improved ambulance service at the different collieries.

The witness was cross-examined by James H. Torrey, for the Delaware & Hudson company. In reply to a question, Dr. Gibbons said he did not believe there was an ambulance in the entire coal regions that had sterile blankets or that the vehicles were sterile. "In fact," said the doctor, "they are a bunch of infection. Every ambulance carries death and disease to every unfortunate miner who is placed in it."

Dr. Gibbons was followed by Dr. Eugene J. Butler, a member of the central poor board of Luzerne county, who testified that 70 per cent. of those in one of the poor houses of Luzerne county were miners and that 40 per cent were crippled by accidents [illegible] and about the mines. Many of these, he said, had become insane through worry over their affliction. A man who works a few years as a miner, he declared, is not fit for anything else.

A. H. McClintock, representing the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal company, cross-examined the witness and asked if it was not true that a large number of professional men and merchants in Wilkesbarre were men whose fathers and grandfathers had been employed in the mines.

"If that is so," the witness replied, "the fathers and grandfathers were the wise fellows who got out in time. They were not men who worked for 20 or 25 years in the mines."

Dr. Butler was excused and the Rev. Dr. Roberts was called to the stand, his examination being conducted by Mr. Darrow for the mine-workers. He reiterated his belief expressed in his book that an intelligent and persistent combination among miners for the maintenance of prices and rates of wages would secure a just share of the profit for the workers.

In answer to Commissioner Clark, Dr. Roberts defined the use of the words "anthracite syndicate," in his book by saying he had reached the conclusion that there was an understanding among the operators to adjust the prices and regulate the trade. This conclusion he had reached from personal investigation.

"In view of the last strike," Mr. Darrow asked, "and everything that has occurred since, have your views as to the desirability of collective bargaining in the anthracite regions been modified or strengthened or have they changed at all?"

"Strengthened decidedly," the witness replied.

After reading extracts from an article in a magazine supposed to have been written by Dr. Roberts, Mr. Darrow asked what was the temper of both parties during the five months of the strike. The witness replied that it was a condition of war and that both sides were intemperate. Dr. Roberts in reply to a question as to what wages a man should receive to maintain the American standard of living, said that he would place the poverty line at $575 per annum. Under that amount, he said the miner and his family would suffer physically, intellectually and mentally.

The commission adjourned until tomorrow so that the commissioners could confer regarding a suggested adjournment for a week or 10 days in order to allow both sides to prepare their documentary evidence.

[illegible] MILLION [illegible] GERMAN IMPERIAL BUDGET

By Associated Press.

Berlin, Nov. 21.—In the reichstag today the secretary of the treasury, Baron von Thielmann, announced that the deficit in the imperial budget for 1903 was estimated to be $37,500,000. The budget, he added, would be submitted in two or three weeks. The deficit for 1902 was $14,750,000. It would not do, the secretary said, to be always providing for deficits by loans nor could the contributions of the federated states be increased. Nevertheless it was probable that the states would ultimately have to bear the deficit. What ought to be done was to increase the imperial revenues so as to balance the expenditures. Looking around for suitable objects for increased taxation, he saw beer and tobacco and he begged the members of the house to keep these in view while thinking how to balance the budget.

Baron von Thielman also intimated that the government intended as soon as practicable to propose pensions for widows and orphans. He was quite unable to say how much such pensions would be an extension of the state insurance laws and treasury burdens, but the suggestion was made that $25 per person yearly was insufficient. Assuming that $50 was enough for the pensions of widows and orphans, it would take $40,000,000. It was impossible to say how much the government tariff bill would yield but a more mechanical estimate, based on the present imports showed the customs receipts would increase $20,000,000. The supporters of the commission's tariff schedules thought a total of $125,000,000 would be derived. Secretary von Thielman mentioned considerations that reduced the estimate largely. The secretary's hint that the government was meditating pensions for widows and orphans caused a stir among the members because it is one of the things the Socialists advocate.

The deficit is the result of the financial depression, which still affects almost every form of business, limiting the purchasing power of every class. While there have been no large failures recently, various symptoms of continued hard times appeared. At the Krupp works, 50,000 laborers have had their time reduced two hours daily and some departments are shutting down each week. The iron syndicates are reorganizing, and prices recently were cut again. The number of unemployed persons, according to the municipal census, is barely fewer than a year ago.

Secretaries of finance before this have thought of levying fresh contributions on beer and tobacco which now have exceptionally low duties, the tobacco import dues being one-third of those of the United States. The beer dues are also below those of other countries. The empire collects no beer tax, that heretofore being left to the several states, whose rates vary. The principal reason which has deterred the levying of an imperial tax on beer was that it would disturb the relations with Bavaria which relys a great deal on its beer tax, which is still enough to permit Bavaria to sell largely to outside states. Bavaria has always pointed out that if the empire taxed beer it would injure Bavaria more than the other states; that it would not be fair play and that it would impair Bavaria's regard for the imperial tie.

The additions of beer and tobacco taxes are certain to be highly unpopular.

Chancellor von Buelow is holding frequent conferences with representatives of the majority parties seeking to break the opposition to the government's tariff schedules, but so far without decisive results. The majority parties have appointed committees to keep in touch with one another so that the chancellor must deal with the majority as a compact whole and not with individuals or groups. The members of the Center party are holding a caucus tonight on the tariff.

CHAMBERLAIN AND BOTHA DISCUSS BOER RELIEF

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 21.—A parliamentary paper relating to the Boer generals' appeal to the world was published today. In a letter to General Botha, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain protests against the "exaggerations in the appeal," and the "incorrect impressions conveyed thereby," and points out that in addition to the gift of $15,000,000 for the relief of the Boers, Great Britain had been spending $1,000,000 monthly since the close of the war in maintaining the burgher camps as organizations to enable the people to return to their homes. Mr. Chamberlain also suggests that large sums were remitted by the Transvaal to Europe during the war. He says there must be a large balance thereof remaining, and invites General Botha's co-operation in finding the persons to whom the money was intrusted and in recovering the balance which, he says, Great Britain is prepared to add to the sums already provided for the relief of the burghers.

General Botha, in reply, says that until Mr. Chamberlain made his report of November 5, he understood that the $15,000,000 was partial compensation for war loss, but if he had known that it was solely for the relief of destitution the appeal in such form would not have been issued. The general declares that he is unaware that any sums were remitted to Europe as alleged and that if such sums exist he would be very glad to see them devoted to the objects mentioned. He concludes with a congratulatory reference to Mr. Chamberlain's approaching trip to South Africa and an expression of his wish that the controversy regarding the past should be ended and that both sides address themselves entirely to the necessities of the present and future.

SMUGGLER-UNION.

By Associated Press.

Telluride, Colo., Nov. 21.—Arthur L. Collins, general manager of the Smuggler-Union mine, who was shot by an unknown assassin on Wednesday night at Pandora, died this morning. He was born in England 33 years ago.

The death of Mr. Collins has cast a deep gloom over the entire district, and his foul murder is being denounced in unmeasured terms. The crime is considered one of the blackest that has ever been committed in Colorado, and swift punishment will be meted out to the guilty one if he is caught.

As yet the authorities have not obtained the slightest clew of the murderer, although detectives have been at work on the case since the fatal shot was fired. San Miguel county will offer a reward of $2,500 for the arrest and conviction of the assassin, and it is probable the city of Telluride will add to this. The Smuggler-Union Mining company will offer a reward of not less than $5,000, and may even double or treble that amount if it is deemed necessary to run down and hang the murderer. It is the intention to make the aggregate reward so large that the man cannot escape.

The Smuggler-Union mine has been closed down indefinitely and it is intimated that it will never be reopened as a punishment to the community, the owners believing that there are a few people in this vicinity who are too indifferent to the murder of its mine manager. Orders for coal, timber and other supplies have been countermanded, and all men have been notified that their wages are ready for them. A large number of miners will be affected and the blow to Telluride will be a hard one.

SHOOTING AT PRIZE FIGHT.

By Associated Press.

Guthrie, O. T., Nov. 21.—Trouble arose at a prize fight at Oklahoma City tonight, and in a few seconds 25 shots were fired. Goldie Wilson fell dead with five bullets in his head, his brother is fatally injured with a shot through the neck, and two unknown men were shot, one through the shoulder, the other through the leg. The prize fight had reached its fourth round when the melee started.

RAMBLERS CLUB WILL RAMBLE BY THE WEEK

A number of young business men of the city have organized a "Ramblers" club, whose object is to take weekly trips to the various points of interest around the city and surrounding country. The members of the club will take their first trip this afternoon to Crystal park. The start will be made at 1 o'clock, when the party will take the Manitou car at the corner of Pike's Peak avenue and Tejon street. W. J. Stillwell, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., will accompany the party on the trip. A trip will be held every Saturday afternoon during the winter.

HIGH SCHOOL MEETS HEAVY BOULDER PREP TEAM TODAY

At Boulder this afternoon occurs the big game between the Colorado Springs High school and the Boulder Preparatory school for the championship of the A division of the Colorado Interscholastic Football league. The Boulder Preps have always, at least ever since the establishment of the two divisions in the league, been the most formidable rival that the local football eleven has had to meet and the game this afternoon will be no exception to the general rule. It will be remembered that the Boulder Preps shut out the locals from winning the championship last year by taking the game on Washburn field after the local school had made one of the prettiest races that has ever been seen in the state under the leadership of Captain "Shorty" Randolph. This year, too, the Preps seem to have the advantage and it will take some great exhibitions of the game to enable the locals to win out. The Preps are a great deal heavier than the defenders of the "brown and white," and judging by a comparison of the scores of the two teams with the Golden High school, Boulder is in better training for the game of this afternoon. The Preps are strong players, and it must be admitted that the chances of the local team are somewhat bad, but the locals announced their intention before leaving for Boulder yesterday afternoon of taking the game if possible.

About 25 rooters accompanied the team, a larger number than was expected at first, and the team will not be entirely alone in the game. The team went up yesterday afternoon in order to get a good unbroken rest before the game. Following is the line-up of the local this afternoon: Center, Howbert; right guard, Carruthers; left guard, Davidson; right tackle, Smith; left tackle, Gaunt; right end, Brigham and Tyler; left end, Spicer; quarterback, Sheafor; right halfback, Fowler; left halfback and captain, Lennox; fullback, Nevitt. Nye will not be in the game as he received such injuries to his right leg in the Golden game that he will be unable to play any more this season. Morrell, McBroom and Linderfeldt will accompany the team as subs.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT NEWSPAPER MEN COMING

Twenty-five specimens of the genus scribe from the wilds of Cripple Creek will descend upon Colorado Springs tomorrow morning at about 10:30 o'clock. They are members of the Cripple Creek District Press association and they are coming as the guests of the Midland Terminal railroad. They will be in a special train and will spend the day here doing their own sweet will. At 1 o'clock an elaborate banquet will be served them at the Antlers hotel, which will also be attended by quite a number of the members of the Pike's Peak Press association, who will take the guests in charge and show them around the city, although it is quite likely that the majority of the visitors will be accompanied by General Superintendent L. R. Ford of the Midland Terminal, who will have charge of the party. The return to Cripple Creek will be made late in the afternoon and lunch will be served on the train going back.

This is the first of a series of excursions for the newspaper men of the Cripple Creek district planned by the Midland Terminal. The following Sunday they will be taken to Canon City over the Florence and Cripple Creek and later in the winter a junket will be made to Glenwood Springs.

Turkeys for nothing. Sunday's Gazette will tell you how to get them.

"International Investment" Tends to Peace.

One of the strongest influences for peace among the nations is the growing habit of borrowing and lending money, or "international investment." Everybody recollects how France abused the United States when this country had to take Spain to task for the misgovernment of her colonies. The root of it all was a huge amount of French money in Spain. France has now invested in foreign countries, chiefly Russia, England, Spain and Italy, the sum of six billion dollars. England, on the other hand, has 10 billion dollars invested abroad, and a good sum of it is in France, but perhaps the greatest part of it is in the United States. But the American millionaire is also abroad, and he is buying everything he can lay his hands on in Europe, and much of it he can't bring home in his trunk, such as underground railways, mineral springs, hotels, castles, ivy-clad ruins, shoe stores, electric factories, foreign brogues, and anti-American prejudices. —(From December Success.)

NEWHOUSE DEFEATED BY BENNETT

Denver Man's Seconds Threw Up the Spongue in the Sixteenth Round.

Special to the Gazette.

Pueblo, Nov. 21.—In the fiercest ring battle which has ever taken place in this city and, from a pugilistic standpoint, the best mill ever pulled off in the arena of the Rover Wheel and Athletic club where some of the best men in the country have met, Jack Bennett, of Cripple Creek beat Frank Newhouse of Denver to a standstill. In the sixteenth round of what was to have been a twenty round go, the latter's second threw up the sponge.

The club house of the Rovers was packed when the men entered the ring and both men had a big following from Cripple Creek and Denver. There was considerable money up on the result with Bennett the favorite. Otto Floto, sporting editor of the Denver Post, was present at the ring side and was Newhouse's chief supporter in the betting. Mr. Floto was called upon before the fight and made a brief speech.

It was a battle for blood from gong to gong. There has been more or less keen rivalry between the two men and both were out to win. Bennett assumed the aggressive immediately, but during the first few rounds Newhouse gave him as good as he sent. Half the time the men had the crowd standing upright with enthusiasm. The men met at catch weights, but both stripped in the neighborhood of 132 pounds and were very evenly matched otherwise. They fought under straight Queensbury rules, fighting out of clinches and here Bennett assumed a decided advantage. He kept whipping his right over Newhouse's kidneys with effectiveness and gradually wore the Denver man down. Newhouse took a terrific grueling and his gameness won him many admirers, but the fight should have stopped sooner than it did and saved him needless punishment. Jim Flynn, the Salt Lake fighter who was behind Newhouse, says that the only reason the sponge was not thrown up sooner is that Newhouse himself hoped for a lucky punch to put Bennett away. In the sixteenth round it was seen that Newhouse was literally hammered to a standstill, however, and Referee Jack Dempsey gave Bennett the decision.

In the preliminaries "Kid" Baughman of Pueblo beat "Billy" Hamilton of Cripple Creek in five rounds and Ashton Yale of Austin Texas stopped a wild and wooly man named Ed West of Pueblo who knew about as much about as much, about fighting as a crow, in two minutes.

LABOR FEDERATION CONSIDERED CLAIMS OF JURISDICTION

By Associated Press.

New Orleans, Nov. 21.—Arguments long drawn out in support of conflicting claims of jurisdiction occupied the time of the American Federation of Labor today. In the morning it was the row between the wood workers and the carpenters and between the wood workers and the piano workers. In the afternoon it was between the longshoremen and the seamen. All the disputes ended in the same manner. Every one was referred to a special committee which is to meet within a given time and endeavor to reach a solution which will be agreeable to both sides.

In the afternoon the application of the International Longshoremen's union for a new charter under the name of the International Longshoremen, Marine and Transport Workers, was taken up.

The special committee to which the matter had been referred reported adversely on the application for a new charter and recommended that marine engineers be not placed under the jurisdiction of the longshoremen, that all firemen, oilers and water tenders be placed in the Seamen's union; that the incoming executive council of the American Federation of Labor call a convention of all freight handlers members of organizations chartered by the American Federation of Labor and all railway freight and baggage handlers, to meet within 90 days for the purpose of forming a national or international union.

Delegate Max Hayes introduced a substitute for the committee's report which after much talk, was adopted by the convention. It provided that the transport workers and seamen should each select two members of a committee, the four to choose a fifth, which should meet in 90 days to settle the differences.

Delegate Furuseth wished the incoming executive council instructed not to issue a charter to the longshoremen under the new name. This was amended by Delegate Wilson in such a manner that no new charter will be granted until after the special committee has made its report to the federation.

The committee on grievances reported the following, which was approved by the convention:

"That the dispute between the blacksmiths and the Allied Metal Mechanics had been referred to a committee of three which would meet within 90 days."

The claims of the boilermakers to jurisdiction over a large number of technical branches of the iron trade was referred to a committee of that organization and "others interested," to establish lines of demarkation between the organizations. The meeting will be held in the near future in Pittsburg. There is no particular dispute and an easy adjustment is expected.

The trouble between the International Lady Garment Workers and the Laundry Workers was thrown out, for the reason that no effort had been made to adjust the dispute before appealing to the convention.

The question of jurisdiction between the Wagon and Carriage Workers on one side and the Blacksmiths and Painters on the other was referred to a committee to meet within 90 days. At 6 o'clock the convention adjourned until 8 o'clock.

In the election of officers, which is to be held tomorrow morning it is highly probable that all the present executive officers of the federation will be elected.

LYNCHING IN INDIANA [illegible] HIS OFFICE

By Associated Press.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 21.—Governor Durbin today notified Sheriff Dudley of Sullivan county that his office was vacant and the coroner becomes sheriff ex officio. The Indiana law provides that a sheriff shall vacate his office when a prisoner in his charge is lynched. Last night the mob took Dillard, the negro, away from Sheriff Dudley and hanged him to a telegraph pole. The sheriff has the right under the law to ask to be reinstated, but he must show that he was powerless to protect his prisoner.

DESPERATE OUTLAW HANGED IN ARIZONA

By Associated Press.

Solomonville, Ariz., Nov. 21.—Augustin Chacon was hanged here today.

He was one of the most desperate outlaws whose criminal deeds have been recorded in the annals of Arizona. It is generally believed he had killed at least a score of persons. Some of his crimes were of the most brutal and revolting nature. The crime for which Chacon was executed today was committed on Christmas day, 1895. The night before he and a band of outlaws, of which he was the leader, broke into the store of Mrs. McCormick at Morenci. Paul Becker, manager of the store, came upon the robbers in the act of looting the place. They captured him and ordered him to open the safe. Upon his refusing to do so he was stabbed to death. The following morning Constable Alexander Davis trailed the robbers to a Mexican's house from which the entire band emerged, shooting at everybody in sight. Two of the robbers were killed. Chacon shot and killed Pablo Salcido who was going up the mountain side to persuade him to surrender. For this crime he was convicted in 1897 and sentenced to be hanged at Solomonville on June 18 of last year. On the night of the 9th of June, 1897, he dug his way out of the stone jail at Solomonville and escaped. He was at large until September of that year when he was captured near Naco by Captain Burton Mossman of the Arizona rangers. Mossman, together with Sheriff Parks of Graham county, had arranged with William Stiles and Burt Alvord, the noted bandit, to entice Chacon across the Mexican line into Arizona on a pretended horse stealing expedition. The officers, Stiles and Alvord, lay in wait for Chacon in the night, played the part of the [illegible] and at daylight arrested him. At the last term of court he was resentenced to be hanged on this date. During his recent period of liberty Chacon is known to have committed many crimes and is credited with having taken more than one life.

DRUG STORE SALOONS NEXT TO BE ATTACKED

Colorado City People Declare That Violation of the Law Is More Rampant in Colorado Springs Than in Colorado City.

It is altogether probable that the self-constituted guardians of the public morals and protectors of the law, who arose in their might and proclaimed to Governor Orman that under no circumstances must pardons issue to the Colorado City men now serving sentences in the county jail imposed by Judge Cunningham, will be engaged at an early date to do some laundry work for Colorado Springs.

The reform forces and the saloon forces of Colorado City are getting up a good-sized agitation on the subject, the reform forces claiming that the violations of gambling and liquor laws by the men now in jail for their acts were no more flagrant than the violations of the liquor laws by every drug store in Colorado Springs holding a liquor license and the saloon forces in Colorado City claim that the violations of the liquor laws in this city are of a sufficiently general and every-day nature to have seriously interfered with the business of the liquor houses in Colorado City.

In a spirit of retaliation the people of Colorado City are talking of taking steps toward waging a war against whisky selling in the drug stores of Colorado Springs. It is not altogether talk, either, and there is good foundation for a report that active steps toward launching the crusade will be taken very shortly.

There has always been a feeling of resentment among the liquor dealers of Colorado City against the local drug stores because of the fact that whisky was being sold here and thereby diverting a considerable trade that would naturally have gone to the Colorado City bars. This feeling has been intensified since the arrest and imprisonment of the five Colorado City men for violation of the gambling and liquor laws. The saloon business in Colorado City is recognized by state and municipal government and pays a license accordingly. The Colorado City sentiment openly expressed is that if anyone is to be punished for violation of the law the authorities should not discriminate.

Henry Coby was the offender against the liquor laws and is serving 30 days in the county jail for the offense. He is alleged to have kept his saloon open on Sunday. The Colorado City people say that it is a notorious fact that whisky is sold here not only on Sunday but every day in the week; that it is as easily procurable here as it is in Colorado City and they hold that law is law and just as applicable to Colorado Springs as it is to Colorado City.

Since the gambling agitation arose, it has openly been charged in Colorado City that "informers" were at work and that they were to be paid heavily for their services. Who the so-called "informers" were is not stated, but it is intimated that that sort of thing will work two ways. There certainly is a strong feeling in Colorado City because it is claimed the Colorado Springs ministers have laid sins at the door of that town which are equally chargeable to Colorado Springs. The drug store question was hardly referred to in the recent agitation and the people of Colorado City feel that while they were after the violators of the law, the reformers should not have centered their efforts in one channel.

There is no disposition to condone the evils which exist in their own community on the part of the citizens of Colorado City, but they say that a matter of this nature is like charity and should commence at home. They feel that the people of Colorado Springs went somewhat out of their way to cry after an evil in that town when one fully as flagrant in the eyes of the law exists here.

County Treasurers' Syndicate in Effort to Collect Railway Taxes

What will act as a test suit and affect El Paso county the same as the others will be instituted by five counties against the Santa Fe Railroad company to collect the delinquent taxes owing by that corporation. Douglas, El Paso's northerly neighbor; Pueblo, its neighbor on the south; Bent, Las Animas and Prowers in the Arkansas valley will start the suit, this having been decided upon at a meeting of county treasurers held at Pueblo. A committee of county attorneys, including H. E. Briggs of Pueblo, G. M. Dameron of Otero, and Tom Herrington of Denver will conduct the case on behalf of the counties.

"Every railroad in El Paso county, with the single exception of the Colorado and Southern, still owes its taxes and they show no disposition to pay up. The Midland, Rio Grande, Santa Fe, Rock Island and Short Line are all delinquent.

Attorney Schuyler of this city was in Denver yesterday as counsel for the Florence and Cripple Creek, the Midland Terminal and the Golden Circle and Short Line roads. He called upon County Attorney Bottom of Arapahoe county and presented a written agreement for signature providing that no sale of his client's interests would be made pending a settlement of the taxes. Mr. Bottom declined to sign the agreement and advised the county treasurer not to do so. The county treasurer of Teller county has certified to the treasurer of Arapahoe the amounts in which the roads are delinquent in their taxes and as the head offices of the roads are in Denver it is said that the treasurer of that county is given the authority to sell the roads for taxes. Treasurer Elder of Arapahoe county has agreed to suspend sale of the railroads and corporation property pending the determination of an injunction issued by Judge Johnson to restrain the board of county commissioners from acting on the petitions for reductions filed by the corporations. Afterwards he will give the railroads eight days' notice of his intention to sell. Mr. Bottom told Mr. Schuyler that this agreement would be extended to cover his roads but no papers would be signed.

COLLEGE GRADUATES' FAIR COMES EARLY NEXT MONTH

The managers of the fair to be held December 5 and 6 for the benefit of the Women's Educational society of Colorado college report very encouraging progress. Everybody is working, and no end of beautiful things are being made. In addition to the many attractions reported before, there will be on sale a tempting display of preserves, jellies, cakes and mince meat.

In connection with the art department there will be pretty posters made by Colorado Springs artists. These posters will be examined by a committee of competent judges, and a prize assigned to the best one, the prize being the amount of money obtained for the poster in an auction sale. Competitors are asked to kindly send their work to Mrs. L. A. E. Ahlers at South hall on or before December 1.

Miss Jeannette Scholz and a corps of assistants will be prepared to furnish silhouettes to all who wish their counterfeit presentments made in this form. The place of the fair is not finally settled as yet, but it is hoped that a down-town store may be secured for this purpose.

GREEK PROCEEDINGS IN ... CASE

Attorneys for the Defense Take Change of Venue and Then

SUBPOENA THE TRIAL JUSTICE

Latter Declares He Knows Nothing of the Case and a Decidedly Complicated State of Affairs Is the Result.

Rather a curious situation has arisen in the case of Robert A. Christy, said to be the manager of the Crescent club, who is under arrest on a charge of gambling and who was to have been tried before Justice of the Peace Ruby yesterday. Christy's attorney came into court and asked for a change of venue which was granted; the case being sent to Justice of the Peace McClelland, the next nearest justice. Then the attorney asked for a subpoena for Justice McClelland as a witness for the defense in the case, stating that he knew something about the lease of the club rooms, and Justice Ruby was, of course, obliged to issue the subpoena.

Justice McClelland was astounded when he heard of the matter. "Why, I know absolutely nothing about the affair whatever," he declared when informed that the subpoena had been issued. "I hardly knew that such an establishment as the Crescent club existed. I know absolutely nothing about its affairs. I cannot conceive why I should have been subpoenaed as a witness."

The situation which presents itself is this: Justice McClelland is probably disqualified from trying the case by reason of being a witness, which the attorneys for the defendant doubtless knew when the subpoena for him was asked for. By reason of such disqualification he would necessarily have to send the case along to another justice of the peace, and the next nearest would be either Justice Bates or Justice Faulkner of Colorado City.

The same condition arose a short time ago in a civil suit which came up before Justice Faulkner in Colorado City. The justice happened to be a witness in the case and therefore held himself to be disqualified from hearing it. He sent it to Justice McClelland upon a change of venue. Justice Bates was the next nearest justice, and the case should have gone to him. Justice McClelland so held and sent the papers back to Justice Faulkner, who then sent them to Justice Bates. The latter called in Justice McClelland, who went to Colorado City and heard the case. The attorneys for one side raised the point that Justice McClelland had no authority under the law to go out of his own precinct to hear a case, in other words declaring that under certain circumstances a justice is not a justice. This contention was later abandoned; and, while the case has been appealed, the proposition does not enter into the appeal, so it is understood.

In this new instance Justice McClelland can doubtless follow the procedure adopted in the civil case and call in either Justice Faulkner or Bates without sending the case to Colorado City. The declaration of Justice McClelland that he knows absolutely nothing about the case has been the ground for the suggestion that possibly there might be an ulterior motive in causing him to be subpoenaed in order to throw the case into the hands of a Colorado City justice. Then the question arises, if the justice suspected such a motive and knew in his own mind that he was worthless as a witness in the case, what action could he pursue? The natural answer is that the law will have to be followed out, nevertheless, but it presents a decidedly unusual and delicate legal point.

It is contended by some that the fact of the justice being a witness is not a disqualification, and it is also claimed that a justice has not the right to call in another justice to try a case; that the only way a case can be transferred to another justice court is by the usual change of venue process. The charge against Christy makes it a bind-over case.

TWO MATRIMONIAL TIES WERE CUT YESTERDAY

In the county court yesterday Judge Orr and a couple of juries were the means of severing two marital knots. Sarah E. Nickell was granted a divorce from Alfred E. Nickell on the grounds of non-support, and Hettie Thompson secured a decree from Arthur O. Thompson on the grounds of extreme and repeated acts of cruelty.

In the case of the Stir Grocery and Clothing company vs. John Fay, default of the defendant for failure to answer and plead was entered and judgment for $25 and costs rendered in favor of the plaintiff.

In the estate of Fred Ege, Judge Orr continued the hearing on the final settlement until November 28.

COLLEGE LECTURE COURSE TO OPEN NEXT TUESDAY

In addition to the attractive program of free public lectures already published the college announces that Professor F. W. Cragin will read a paper on the construction and improvement of the Colorado Springs roads and streets. Professor Cragin's long experience as geologist will make this paper one of especial interest to all those who have the improvement of the city at heart. The first lecture in the course will be given next Friday evening at 8 o'clock in Perkins. Professor Ahlers will then speak on the great drama, "L'Aiglon" by Edmond Rostand.

Y. M. C. A. SOCIAL WAS ATTENDED BY BIG CROWD

About 75 persons were present at the social given at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. in the basement of the First Christian church last night by the Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian church.

A social is given in the rooms of the association every Friday evening during the winter by one of the C. E. societies of the city, and last night it was the turn of the Presbyterians to have charge of the affair. A short program was rendered during the evening and ice cream and cake were served. The Y. M. C. A. glee club rendered several selections, Miss Short gave some of her readings, and a quartet composed of Mrs. Seldomridge, Mr. and Mrs. Schneider and Mr. Moore, also discoursed music during the evening. "Quotations" and other old fashioned games helped to make the evening a pleasant one for all present.

... CLUB MEMBERS ... SMOKER

MUSIC AND REFRESHMENTS ENTERTAINED MEMBERS OF THE PIKE'S PEAK.

Evening Was Passed in Pleasant and Profitable Manner With Manager Cromwell Doing the Honors.

Another of those enjoyable evenings that Colorado Springs people know as "smokers" was spent at the Pike's Peak club last evening and fully 100 members of this popular social organization were in attendance. Manager James Cromwell did the honors for the club and allowed no one to escape with a feeling that he had been overlooked.

Barnes' Opera house orchestra was in attendance and discoursed music throughout the evening. All the popular favorites were played and the music was greatly appreciated. At 10 o'clock lunch was served in the billiard room, Mueth being the caterer and furnishing one of the most enjoyable lunches that he has yet served the members of this club who have no hesitancy in voting him the proper thing in this line. Salads, sandwiches, croquettes and coffee with trimmings, were included in the menu.

It is the intention of the club to hold these social evenings from time to time throughout the winter. Each smoker that is held demonstrates their growing popularity with the club members.

ROSE MELVILLE IN "SIS HOPKINS."

"Sis Hopkins," that charming pastoral comedy, which is now in its fourth season of unbroken success, with Miss Rose Melville, the originator of the character of "Sis" in the title role comes to the Opera house on next Monday.

So great has been the success of this remarkable play that Mr. J. R. Stirling, under whose direction it has become one of the most popular and famous of modern comedy dramas has decided to keep it out for an indefinite period and this season it has been entirely recast and new scenery and costumes have been provided with a lavish hand. It is now one of the most picturesque productions on the stage, and in support of Miss Melville there is a company made up of some of the best known character actors on the stage today. Many of the members of the organization have played leading roles in prominent productions and are well known to and popular with theater goers. The story of "Sis" Hopkins is that of an awkward country girl, the daughter of "Pa" Hopkins, and she dresses in that queer, old-fashioned style of gingham pinafore, striped stocking and pig tailed hair put up with funny little red side combs. A railroad wants to get the right of way through the farm and an agent comes along to secure the necessary papers and signatures. His efforts to this end give "Sis" her first insight into the duplicity of the world. It is a revelation to her and in a most pathetic scene she announces her determination to "go away and learn to dress and be and be like other people." When she returns it is as a young woman of fashion, refined and well versed in the niceties of the social world, only to find that her father has lost his mind and does not recognize her. She slips away and returns clad in her old clothing as "Sis" and singing her old father's favorite ballad, brings him back to reason and recognition. The character of "Sis" is distinctive and quaint and is original with Miss Melville. Her mannerisms, her odd, halting speech, the humorous sayings and her teetering walk make the character one of the most interesting on the stage. When she is asked to sign away her portion of the farm for the railroad she speaks those lines which have become famous from one end of the country to the other: "You can't never make no hin' doin' nothin' for nobody for nothin'."

Football Teams Leave for the Big Games Tomorrow

The members of the High school football squad will leave over the Colorado & Southern this afternoon at 1 o'clock for Boulder where they play the Boulder Preps tomorrow afternoon in the final gridiron contest of "A" division of the Colorado Interscholastic Football league. The members go up this afternoon in order that they may get a good night's sleep and a short rest before entering the game.

Sixteen members of the squad and a few rooters will take the trip to see if, with their feeble yells, they can take the game. The fact that not more than half a dozen students and friends of the school are going up to witness the game throws a big blur on the local team, for this is the biggest game in which the High school will contest this year and upon it depends the local's chance of securing the championship. To have shown the proper spirit the students should have organized and at least 25 rooters accompanied the team to Boulder. The latter has been sadder but wiser since the Golden game and have put in two weeks of hard, hard, faithful training since their defeat. They declare that they are going to win the game if it is a possibility, and will be the champions of this division at least.

The members of the college team will not leave for Denver until tomorrow morning. Not all of the regular members of the team will be played, as Coach Caldwell considers it the best policy to save them for the game with the Miners next Thursday. The subs will be used to a great extent in the D. A. C. game, but the Tigers are confident of carrying off the victory from Pelvin's men.

The State School of Mines team will lay off tomorrow. The game with the Dakota Miners was canceled several days ago and the Miners will rest tomorrow in preparation for the Thanksgiving day game with the college upon which they are staking fond hopes and expectations.

YALE AND HARVARD READY FOR BATTLE

By Associated Press.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 20.—The substitutes of the Yale football eleven were permitted to break training tonight with the big dinner at their training table.

The spectators did not see much playing by the 'varsity regulars today for they were not required to do hard work nor any scrimmaging. Later the half backs were given pitching practice.

Harvard is expected here tomorrow afternoon.

By Associated Press.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 20.—The finishing touches were given to the Harvard varsity eleven's practice on Soldiers Field today.

The team had signal practice and Capt. Marshall was given the opportunity to try drop kicking for goals. Then the second eleven came upon the field. The practice was similar and Leo Daly also tried drop kicking.

Behind closed gates the team ran through new formations and signals.

TWO TEAMS GO

MINNEAPOLIS AND ST. PAUL OUT OF AMERICAN ASSOCIATION NEXT YEAR.

Saints Will Probably Be Transferred to Chicago and Be Managed by Mike Kelly.

By Associated Press.

Minneapolis, Nov. 20.—The Tribune will say tomorrow:

It is reported on good authority that Minneapolis and St. Paul will not be represented in the American Baseball association next year. It is further rumored that the St. Paul team will be transferred to Chicago, under the management of Mike Kelly, and the Minneapolis team will, if present plans materialize, go to Detroit.

INTERESTING GAMES IN POOL TOURNAMENT

Two more interesting games of the pool tournament being held at the Exchange Billiard parlors were played last night. The first game was played between H. Kinsman and M. Clark, the former being a scratch man and the latter having a handicap of 10 balls. Clark was out, running his 90 balls while Kinsman was making 78. The second game between C. Howard and L. Cramer resulted in a victory for Howard, the scratch man, who ran his 100 balls while Cramer was making 59. Cramer had a handicap of 15 balls. Several good runs were made during the evening. Howard, in his game, made one run of 15 balls.

The games scheduled for this evening are between P. Phelps and C. Smith and C. Baker and W. Kloepfer. All of these are scratch men with the exception of Kloepfer, who has a handicap of five balls.

A large crowd was present last night and a great deal of interest manifested in the tournament.

NOTES AND BUSINESS COLLEGE TEAMS DRAW

The football teams representing Henager's Business college and the State School for the Deaf played a game on the grounds of the latter team yesterday. The score resulted in a draw, each team making a touchdown, though the ball was most of the time in the business college territory. Most of the gains of the deaf boys were made by straight line plunging, Nelson, Garrison and Closson, the backs, excelling in this particular. Fuller was the only man on the business college team who could break through the deaf mute stone wall, and the gains he made were mostly small. There was much wrangling during the game, the deaf boys feeling that they were getting unfair treatment at the hands of the referee, and finally refusing to play. This was the third game played by the two teams, each resulting in a draw.

CHARGES AGAINST YALE MAN.

By Associated Press.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 20.—A telegram received here today from Syracuse, N. Y., offered proof that Glass, the Yale football guard, had received pay for playing football in Syracuse. The telegram indicated two men who could positively assert that Secretary Dunworth of the Syracuse Athletic club, had paid Glass money for playing football in October, 1904. The dispatch was at once placed before the Harvard Athletic committee.

INCIDENTS OF THE HOMEWARD JOURNEY OF THE PRESIDENT

By Associated Press.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 20.—The president's homeward journey today was without special incident. The ride across the mountains over the Southern railway was made in fast time. The train stopped only to change crews and engine. Its coming was generally unheralded, but there was a small crowd at almost every station. Several times the train was cheered as it swept by. At Chattanooga the president received a telegram from Newport, Tenn., saying that the school children would turn out to see him. By his direction the train was slowed down when that place was reached. About 200 children with flags in their hands were lined up along the track. The president stood on the rear platform and waved his hand and hat to them. At Stevenson, Ala., early this morning about 50 children gathered around his car and begged the porter to let them see the president. The president, who had just arisen, heard their cries, and rather than disappoint them he stepped to the door in his stocking feet and said: "Good morning," just as the train drew out. At Coltewah Junction, where the mountaineer engaged the president in conversation. The Tennesseean remarked that the bears in Mississippi had proved too wild for the president.

"Perhaps they were domestic bears and took to the woods upon my arrival," replied the president smiling. At Knoxville the president shook hands with a sister of the lieutenant colonel of his regiment. The president will reach Washington tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

By Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 20.—Consular and detective agencies of Europe are endeavoring to discover the whereabouts of Frederick C. Johnson, son of Colonel Edmond Johnson, a wealthy citizen of Vineland, N. J., who disappeared three months ago.

Johnson is a nephew of the Princess Agnes Salm Salm of Bonn, Prussia, who is well known in Chicago, where her sister, Mrs. I. H. Rea, resides. He was a student at the University of Pennsylvania and after finishing his studies there had taken a course at the Darmstad university.

On September 1 he started from Bonn for Vineland. That was the last his relatives ever saw of him. Upon receiving no news of his arrival in the United States, the princess made inquiries of the steamship company and learned that he had engaged passage at Antwerp, but that the steamship sailed without him. His baggage was found still unchecked and untouched at Antwerp.

Although the search has been prosecuted vigorously, no further trace of the missing man has been obtained.

ITALIAN IMMIGRATION

By Associated Press.

Rome, Nov. 20.—The Tribuna, commenting on the proposed new law of the United States to stop the immigration of illiterates says this measure is a new and cruel offense to Italy. The Journal urges the government to make a protest to the United States Government inasmuch as the proposed measure will strike especially at Italy, whose immigration comprises 50 per cent of illiterates.

"The government," it concludes, "must obtain a veto on the bill from President Roosevelt so that the measure at least may be postponed until the Italian immigrants are able to take to the United States not only the strength of their arms but the cultivation of their minds."

EXCLUSIVE SUMMER RESORT.

By Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 20.—George J. Gould, Henry C. Frick and other capitalists in this city, Philadelphia and Pittsburg are believed to contemplate the establishment of a new and exclusive summer resort on Two Mile Beach island, three miles north of Cape May city, in the New Jersey coast. Application will be made at once to the state riparian board of New Jersey for rights on ocean and one-half miles of water front. Work will begin soon as the necessary rights can be secured.

BOBBY DOBBS DEFEATED.

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 20.—At the National Athletic club at Marylebone tonight, the American pugilist, Bobby Dobbs, met the London boxer, Jem Maloney, for a purse of $1,750 and the 133-pound championship. Dobbs, who was the favorite, had somewhat the better of the opening rounds, but in the fifth round, Maloney equalized matters. Dobbs managed to stay the full 20 rounds, but the result was an easy victory for Maloney on points.

According to Apparently Well Founded Rumors It Will Be One of the Largest in the West.

Pueblo Bureau
Colorado Springs Gazette.
With the Colorado Securities Co.

Pueblo, Nov. 21.—Apparently well founded rumors are to the effect that Pueblo is soon to have a new smelter, one of the largest in the west, and that the capitalists who will establish it have interested almost all of the railroads centering here in the enterprise. It is also stated that some heavy holders in the American Smelting trust will be in the deal.

IMPROVED SERVICE—The details of the consolidation of the Pike's Peak Power company and the Pueblo Traction company, as published in this morning's Gazette, have been a general theme of conversation today. The deal has been pending for some time and its consummation is of the utmost importance to the city as it will mean extensive improvement in the local street car service.

TO ENFORCE ORDINANCE—Chief of Police Shoup has ordered that hereafter all hotel porters, runners and solicitors for trade must vacate the union depot side of B street and ply their trade on the opposite side in accordance with an ordinance heretofore not enforced.

STOLE A WHEEL—Sydney Mayweather, a hotel porter, stole a valuable bicycle this evening from John T. Newberry in Bessemer and rode it down into that part of town known as Mexico, where he tried to sell it for $5. An Italian deputy sheriff picked him up and had him in the city jail inside of 20 minutes from the time he stole the wheel.

CONSIDERED HIS FRIENDS—S. carter, a machinist, called at the police station this afternoon and asked to be locked up on a charge of drunk. He said that he was afraid that if he was at large any longer he would impose upon his friends and become a general nuisance.

REGAINED REASON—Frederick L. Chase, who was sent from La Plata county to the Wooderoft sanitarium for the insane last September, has regained his reason and will be discharged.

TO BE MARRIED—Mathew Germono, the well-known musician in the Grand opera house orchestra, is to be married next Monday night to Miss Catherine Hoffer. Five hundred invitations have been sent out to German-Americans of the city.

POSSIBLE MURDER—The police are working on the theory that Felix Mosesky, who died at the Pueblo hospital late last night was murdered for his money. Deceased was 60 years of age and had been found lying on the floor in his little house on West Fourth street, where it was rumored that he had $20,000 in money hidden away. He was also said to be the possessor of property in various places and considerable valuable mining stock. He had been a resident of Pueblo for 15 years and had a little shop in Victoria avenue, where he filed saws. McCarty was not a user of drugs or liquors and was very secretive. The body is at McCarthy's undertaking parlors and shows blotches similar to those on a corpse, produced by morphine. He has a brother, Michael by name, in California.

BURGLARY—Bessemer had a $20 burglary last night as the home of John Tolin.

MINNEQUA LINE—The street car's extension in Minnequa addition has been completed and will be in operation about next Monday.

RIO GRANDE TRACKS—The Rio Grande double tracks from Pueblo to Goodnight station west of the city, have been completed and will be put in service at once.

THROUGH BRIDGE—A Colorado & Southern south bound freight train went through a bridge on the Rio Grande tracks near Verde station, 20 miles south of here last night. All trains from the south were delayed until today. The crew of the wrecked train escaped almost miraculously.

DENVER LADIES AMONG THOSE AT POPE'S RECEPTION

By Associated Press.

Rome, Nov. 21.—At a reception of 500 Piedmontese pilgrims today the pope jocularly referred to the unfounded rumors yesterday, adding:

"My time has not yet come. We have many things to accomplish before death."

A number of Americans were received in special audience by the pope in the Sistine chapel, including Mr. and Mrs. Harry Black of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Gano, Mr. and Mrs. Francis and Mr. and Mrs. Strauss of Pennsylvania; J. W. Shaw and Miss H. Buckley of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. Conway and sons of Dayton, Ohio; Miss Emery and Miss Campbell of Denver, Colo.; Mrs. James Mattield and daughter of Los Angeles, Calif., and Miss Young of Evanston, Ill. The pontiff spoke cordially to each and gave them individually his hand to kiss.

CHOLERA DECREASED.

By Associated Press.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—A cablegram has been received from the Philippine commission stating that the number of cases of cholera had gone down to five a day instead of 34 a day a week ago. The message says that the commission feels much relieved that the Mariquina watershed, which furnishes the water supply for Manila will not be contaminated. Up to a short time ago grave fears were entertained that cholera might be introduced in the Mariquina region although great precaution has been taken to prevent such a result.

The Children's Favorite.

One of the greatest difficulties encountered when children are ill, is the objection they have to taking medicine. The remedy must be pleasant or the patience of the parent is exhausted before it is successfully administered. Mr. G. G. Wagner, of Spring Grove, Pa., overcomes this annoyance by using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He says his little boy always asks for it whenever he catches cold. This remedy has become the children's favorite, as it is pleasant to take and it always cures and cures quickly. For sale by all druggists.

Previous Successes Eclipsed by the Popular Order—Result of the Tax Sale.

Cripple Creek Bureau
Colorado Springs Gazette.

Cripple Creek, Nov. 21.—A social session was held at Elks' hall by the Cripple Creek lodge, B. P. O. E., No. 316, this evening. A number of ladies and gentlemen, in fact the best talent in the district, tendered their services for the entertainment, which was one of the greatest social successes ever held in this city. That is saying a great deal for this order, for heretofore they have held many, but tonight's function surpassed anything ever given. Mesdames Black, Bates, Hobbs, Kyner and Messrs. Jones, and Shell entertained the audience by vocal solos and all received repeated encores, while Mr. W. S. Young and Mr. Crane performed on the trombone and flute which seemed to be appreciated very much by the large crowd. Miss Bernard rendered several piano solos, receiving a great ovation, while little Miss Berna van Norman simply captivated the house by her elocutionary and dramatic powers and was encored again and again. The entertainment proved a great treat for the people of the district, but when one says "the Elks entertained," everybody in this district knows what this means.

TAX SALE—The list of claims purchased at the annual tax sale of Teller county property which closed last Tuesday has finally been made up by the county treasurer. The sale was very light and the total amount of redemption money received from buyers of claims was $13,895.61. Collections of back taxes have been very good during this month. About $75,000 of the taxes due for 1901 have been paid to the county treasurer since November 1. The deputy county treasurer stated yesterday that the sheriff would be ordered to restrain all personal property upon which taxes were due and not paid by December 1. He said that he had positively made the third and last call and where the amount due on personal property was not paid by that time the result would be a case of selling.

GLOVER'S SUIT—In the county court a suit for $2,000 was filed by Attorney J. M. Glover in behalf of J. M. Dyer vs. the Consolidated Mining Co. The plaintiff claims to have sustained injuries to his back caused by falling rock through the failure of the company to lag and timber shaft in which he was employed. When service was made at the office of the woods investment company today, the sheriff's officer was appraised of the non-existence of any such company as the Consolidated Mining company.

TO REMAIN—The leading dry goods house in the Cripple Creek district is to remain here. The Shilling Mercantile company has given up the idea of opening their new store in Denver this fall for the present at least, as they are unable to obtain possession of the premises leased by them. The ejectment suit pending for some time between the landlord and the present occupant terminated in favor of the tenant. An appeal has been taken to the court of appeals and it will be a matter of possibly two years before an opinion can be rendered. Although this will mean quite a loss to Mr. Shilling, it will be a decided gain to the people of the Cripple Creek district.

MOTHERS CLUB—A meeting of the Mothers club of the Placer school was held this afternoon, Mrs. Hyde presiding. Prof. Arthur Allin of the State university addressed the meeting when the following program was rendered. Music, Mrs. Gauzan; recitation, D. Claff; reading, Miss S. Lee; recitations, H. Wallace and I. Fischer; "Education of Children," by Miss C. Phillips; reading, by I. Hunter; song, A. S. Smith. A large number of members of the Mothers club from both the Golden and the McKinley schools were present and the afternoon passed off very pleasantly. Prof. Allin will address the teachers and others tomorrow morning at the Cripple Creek High school.

ALLEGED LARCENY — Tonight Peter Booth swore out a warrant for Rhoda Mahan for larceny from the person. Mr. Booth says the young woman in some way purloined $40.50 from his pocket while in a wine room last night. Miss Mahan was taken before Justice Harrington tonight and gave bond in the sum of $200 for her appearance in court tomorrow.

DEATH OF AN INFANT—The little baby girl of Orville Smith died this morning at 6:30 at their home on East El Paso street. The child was only a few months old and has been ailing since it was born. Funeral services will be held at the Congregational church Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Interment will be made at Mt. Pisgah cemetery.

WILL BASSFORD BETTER—Will Bassford, who has been seriously ill from pneumonia, is reported as greatly improved in condition.

OPERATION NECESSARY—R. McCroskey, suffering from an abscess of the knee was removed from his home in Goldfield yesterday to the county hospital in this city and Sunday an operation will be performed.

OPEN FOR TRAFFIC.

By Associated Press.

Bonesteel, S. D., Nov. 21.—The extension of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad to this city is now open for traffic. Bonesteel is on the edge of the Rosebud Indian reservation, which is to be opened for settlement next spring. The new line passes through some rich grazing lands and as the reservation embraces such lands, the opening entry is expected to attract a large number of people.

High School Teams to Meet on the Gridiron Today—Dr. Welles' Foot Amputated.

Victor Bureau
Colorado Springs Gazette.

Victor, Nov. 21.—The injuries received by Dr. S. H. Welles when he caught his foot between the floor and the bottom of the elevator cage in the Bank block several weeks ago made the amputation of that member necessary and the operation was performed this morning in the Victor hospital. The bones of his foot were badly smashed, and while the best surgical skill was called into play to save the foot, it was found impossible to delay amputation longer without running risk of blood poisoning which might prove fatal. The foot was taken off just above the ankle and the operation was entirely successful. The surgeons completed their work about noon, and at 5 o'clock the patient was resting easily. It is understood that Dr. Welles carries an accident insurance of $10,000, which will in a small measure compensate him for the loss of the limb.

FOOTBALL—The Victor High school football team goes to Florence tomorrow morning to meet the High school team of that city on the gridiron tomorrow afternoon. The boys have reached very good shape under the training of Coach Hay, and promise to give the Coal Oil boys a good drubbing. The team averages 141 pounds, while the Florence team weigh 143. The Florence boys will play a return game at Union park on Thanksgiving afternoon. The line-up of the Victor team is as follows: Calderwood center, Maloney quarterback and captain, Wallingford left guard, Reardon right guard, Parker left tackle, McCoughan right tackle, McAdams left end, Matthews right end, McClure left half, Chester right half, Johnson fullback and Reese, Hanna and Rourke will be on the subs bench. A number of rooters from the schools will accompany the team to Florence.

ERNINGTON'S FORTUNE—R. Ernington, employed as a decorator by Ovren bookstore, was served notice today that he had fallen heir to a $40,000 estate in Illinois.

A. O. U. W.—Victor Lodge No. 56, A. O. U. W., gave an entertainment and smoker at Miners Union hall tonight in honor of Grand Master Workman Abbott, who made a brief address, giving some statistics and showing the benefits of the order of fraternal insurance. A large crowd was present and the evening entertainment proved a huge success.

AMICITIA CLUB — The regular monthly dance of the Amicitia club, which is given on the third Friday in each month, was held at Armory hall tonight, and Victor's elite danced until the wee small hours.

STRUCK BY ROCK—Lester Reed suffered a broken finger and a painful scalp wound by some falling rock in the Shurtliff yesterday, the rock falling a distance of 45 feet. The young man was taken to his home and physicians soon had him on a speedy way to recover.

FUNERAL—The remains of the late E. C. Rankin were interred this afternoon at Sunnyside cemetery. The funeral services were held in Dunn's chapel.

BORN—At the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Russo No. 521 Garnet street, a 10-pound boy made his appearance early this morning. Mother and son are doing nicely.

[illegible] MURDERER

Mrs. Gore Was Pupil of Moszkowski—Family Well Known in California and Mexico.

By Associated Press.

Paris, Nov. 21.—The tragic death of the young American artist, Mrs. Ellen Gore, continues to occupy the attention of the police and the staff of the American consulate. The developments of the true inwardness of the mystery were followed with eager interest by the public today, and brought forward many who had known Mrs. Gore here and in America and from them her antecedents were fully obtained. It was developed also that she had been a pupil of the famous composer Moszkowski, while De Rydzewski was a pupil of Jean Lasalle, the baritone of the grand opera. The police branch of the mystery seemingly remains undeveloped, and no further light has been thrown on the causes which led to the tragedy or the circumstances attending its enactment.

An autopsy was held today by Dr. Socquet and resulted in a formal report that the cause of death was a bullet wound. Consul General Gowdy assigned a number of his staff to attend the autopsy and take notes of the condition of the body. That official reported that the bullet entered the forehead above the left eye and went clear through the head. The bullet was not found.

The prefect of police designated Gastinne Rennetta, the expert armorer, to study the weapon and wound for the purpose of determining the possibility of suicide. Although many friends of Mrs. Gore called on Mr. Gowdy, none claimed the body and late in the day he cabled Attorney Butler of Mexico City asking as to its disposition.

The most circumstantial account concerning Mrs. Gore was furnished by Vincent Toledo, director of a leading piano establishment in the Avenue De L'Opera. He says she was introduced to him by letters from musical friends in New York. She appeared to him most charming and vivacious and devoted to music. She received all of her call at a private address. She traveled in the early [illegible] over Europe and took lessons in Vienna from a leading [illegible]. Returning last Aug[illegible] asked to be introduced to a party of the highest rank. Moszkowski was there. She met him with a lit ardor and took part in a number of musicales. Last Tuesday she accepted an invitation to the opera from M. Toledo for last night and he was horrified on going for to find her dead.

M. Moszkowski, on being interviewed, said:

"I cannot believe Mrs. Gore has committed suicide. She was of the gayest disposition. I never saw the least evidence of melancholy. She was deeply interested in her work and gave much promise as a musician. It was her purpose, after completing her musical education, to return to America. She inquired of me recently if I thought she would make an excellent professional. She has taken lessons of me every Tuesday since the tenth of October. Last Tuesday I received a note from her saying she was suffering from indisposition. I did not know anything of her private life."

The family of Dr. Buttner, an American dentist in the Rue De La Paix, furnished details of the antecedents of Mrs. Gore. They had been intimate with the family in Mexico, but did not know her here. They said her maiden name was Sinclair and that she lived in California, where she met and was married to Mr. Gore of British Columbia. They removed to Mexico City and became wealthy through land speculations. They built "Gore court," a large apartment house, and moved in good society. Domestic difficulties led to a separation, but not to divorce, and she began traveling to perfect her musical education. The property in Mexico was equally divided between Mr. Gore and his wife. Mrs. Gore's share was of considerable value and yielded her a steady income.

De Rydzewski continues in confinement. The police declined to admit his friends to see him pending inquiries. M. Lassalle has undertaken to champion his pupil's interests and has designated two leading lawyers to defend him.

Lasalle says the murder theory is untenable as De Rydzewski is of a tender, sympathetic disposition. The baritone expected to prepare the latter for a part in one of Rubenstein's operas for early production in St. Petersburg.

De Rydzewski and his brother brought Mrs. Gore to Lasalle recently. She discussed her musical ambitions and was vivacious, charming and enthusiastic over music.

The police have modified their theory on one damaging clew. Dr. Rydzewski at first exclaimed that the girl was dead and he afterward said she had committed suicide. The police at first held this to be a damaging contradiction but Commissaire Landel said after further investigation today that the section in the declaration regarding suicide was misunderstood and that De Rydzewski intended to indicate merely that she was dead.

MRS. GORE WAS FAVORABLY KNOWN IN MEXICO CITY

By Associated Press.

Mexico City, Nov. 21.—The tragic death in Paris of Mrs. Gore, wife of Thomas Sinclair Gore, has greatly shocked her friends in this city. She was regarded as a lady of artistic tastes and had a large circle of acquaintances in the American and English colonies. Her husband is a Canadian and brought his wife here as a bride some 15 years ago. She is believed to have been born in Ohio, but on being orphaned at an early age was brought up by her aunt, Mrs. P. T. Dickerson, of Alameda, Calif. It is said that the couple did not live happily together, having had one child, which died. For some time past Mr. and Mrs. Gore have lived apart, she, being of an artistic temperament and fond of music, went to Vienna, where she studied under [illegible]. ### Complaints Against a Longmont Home for Children—State Land Board Meeting.

Denver Bureau
Colorado Springs Gazette.

Denver, Nov. 21.—The application of Julius Aichele for a writ of prohibition against Judge Johnson of the county court was argued in the supreme court here today.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME—Complaints were made to the Humane society today by the state board of health against the Hygiene home at Longmont. It is charged that the children in this home have not the necessary food and clothing and that there is not the necessary fuel to keep them warm. There are about 20 children in the home. A letter was sent by Secretary Whitehead of the Colorado Humane society to the parties against whom the complaint had been made warning them against further violation of the law.

STATE LAND BOARD—At a meeting of the state land board today an order was made granting the petition of H. H. Hackman who in 1891 purchase school section 16, in township 3 and paid thereon the sum of $1,321.60, the total amount paid being $2,240.00. Mr. Hackman petitioned the board to grant him a patent on the south half in which case he will relinquish the north half to the state. The report of the land board for the year shows an increase of 40,000 acres in rentals, a value amounting to between $23,000 and $24,000.

REWARD OFFERED—Governor Orman this morning offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the assassin of A. L. Collins the manager of the Smuggler-Union mine of Telluride.

BEET SUGAR FACTORY—Negotiations are being completed for the building of a $500,000 beet sugar factory at Brighton. Several eastern capitalists are interested in the enterprise.

R. G. DUN'S REVIEW.

By Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review tomorrow will say:

Voluntary increases in wages by some of the largest railway systems in the country bear eloquent testimony to the amount of business handled in the past and emphasize the confidence of officials in continued heavy traffic. Moreover by this addition of large sums to the purchasing power of railway employes there is assurance of a larger demand for all staple lines of merchandise. Temporarily, sales of seasonable lines of wearing apparel are retarded by mild weather, but this loss will be fully made up when low temperature becomes general. Preparations for holiday trade are on an unprecedented scale, especially at interior points. There is no relief as to the congestion of railway traffic nor any immediate prospect of free movements at the point of most serious blockade. Coal freight is steadily gaining and all railway earnings thus far reported for November exceed last year's by 5.9 per cent. Orders are mainly coming forward for iron and steel products that have been held back many months in expectation of an easier market. Instead of making offers, however, producers seek premium for early delivery and hesitate to accept contracts where material and fuel are not in sight. No relief is reported as to the movement of coke nor is any anticipated for some time to come. Plans for constructive work are now increasing and a [illegible] tonnage of structural material will be required. As the present congestion is due to inadequate facilities, the most important inquiry is for railway equipment. Silver bullion declined to the lowest price on record and copper and tin also receded from former quotations. London was a conspicuous factor in these changes.

Heavy lines of dry goods and footwear need the stimulus of cold weather. Orders for spring shoes are coming forward freely and there is supplementary buying of winter goods on a moderate scale. Retailers have much money tied up in rubber goods, for which there has been little demand. Both sole and upper leather are quiet.

No concessions are obtained on hides except where new offerings are of inferior quality although stocks have increased and the western markets are quiet.

Failures for the week number 206 in the United States against 218 last year and 24 in Canada compared with 31 a year ago.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me when all else had failed. I suffered a long time with female troubles."

"Mrs. Pinkham's advice and medicine saved me from a surgical operation. Doctors said an operation was necessary."

Thousands upon thousands of women throughout this country are not only expressing such sentiments as the above to their friends, but are writing letters of gratitude containing just such expressions to Mrs. Pinkham until she has more than a million from women in all classes of society who have been restored to health by her advice and medicine after all other means had failed.

Women should remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is performing such remarkable cures, assisted by Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

If you are asked by a druggist to take something else, demand the medicine which you know is best—the medicine which has made the greatest number of cures—the medicine whose record is unequalled by any other medicine, exclusively for women, in the world,

How Betty Made Mince-Meat.

Betty planned to make a good supply of mince-meat. It would keep through the winter, and Jack had a weakness for mince pies. Since Betty had mastered pastry, she felt that pies would give very little trouble. So she went vigorously to work stoning raisins, shredding citron, cleaning currants and sultana raising, and boiling and chopping beef.

Of this beef she bought a lean piece, weighing a generous pound. This she boiled and minced, and put with it half a pound of beef-kidney suet, which also had freed from strings and crumbled. Two and a half pounds of tart apples were peeled, cored and chopped, and this, with a pound of seeded and chopped raisins, a pound of well cleansed currants, half a pound of Bolfanas, carefully picked over, a scant half pound of finely shredded citron, and a pound and a quarter of brown sugar were mixed with the beef and suet. Then in went the spices. A tablespoonful each of cinnamon and mace, half a tablespoonful each of cloves and allspice, half a nutmeg, grated, and a heaping teaspoonful of salt were stirred in, and last of all a pint of cider was put in to moisten the mince-meat. When it came to this stage of the proceeding, Betty discarded her wooden spoon, washed her hands again, rolled her sleeves above her elbows, and plunged her plump hands into the mixture, beating and stirring until she was sure the compound was thoroughly blended. Then she turned the mince-meat out of the big yellow bowl in which she had made it and into a stone crock with a cover and set it in a corner of her cellar.—(Christine Terhune Herrick, in December issue of Success.

FREE GOLD STRIKE IN GOLD SOVEREIGN

Ore Body Opened in 600-Foot Level Gives Fabulous Returns but it May Be Only a Pocket—Ten Carloads of $90 Ore From the Property Are Now Ready for Shipment.

Special to the Gazette.

Cripple Creek, Nov. 21.—One of the richest free gold strikes ever made in the district is reported on the Gold Sovereign. The ore body was opened on the 600-foot level and shows a face of native gold. The rock runs all the way up to $20,000 to the ton. It may prove to be only a small pocket, however, as no great amount of development work has been done on the find. A shipment of 10 carloads of ore that will run about $90 to the ton is now ready for shipment, and can be shipped any time.

McKinzey, Baker and others who recently cut a promising body of ore in a new shaft on the south end of the Burns of the Acacia company have commenced to erect a hoisting plant which will be in operation in a few days. The ore found on this property shows $40 values to the ton and no doubt will be a shipping proposition as soon as enough work is done to open the ground.

James Carpenter of Alambra dropped into the city a day or so ago and stated that on a claim he owns in that section he had a very fine showing; that a body of ore had been opened up a short time ago about four feet wide and that assayed $30.00 to $45.00 per ton. Alambra is located about 24 miles west of Cripple Creek and was the scene of the greatest excitement a few years ago, but at the present time about four houses constitute the town. The nearest town is Guffy, which is four miles distant.

J. Wright, who is leasing on the Thompson shaft of the Elkton company, yesterday closed his first shipment, it being 100 tons of ore. The ore is opened in the various levels now to warrant a production of two broad gauge cars of ore each day, and it is expected will be maintained from today until the expiration of his lease, late during the coming year. Mr. Wright, since securing the lease on the Thompson, has developed it into one of the largest leasing propositions in the district.

Dalzell & Wilson are breaking a small amount of rich ore from a narrow vein on the north end of the Theresa at a depth of 200 feet, also doing considerable development work, expecting that any day they will run on to ore that has steady pay values.

Messrs. Fletcher, Seller and Carmine, the committee appointed by the Mining Exchange to take charge of the affairs of the old Klondike company, all deny that the case is settled by any means as has been stated several times lately. Mr. Fletcher this morning said that they had not received a motion to reinstate the case, so it still stands in the jurisdiction of the supreme court. Mr. Fletcher said, "Of course we are doing the necessary work of assessment, and will continue to do so, and I expect any day now to receive a notice from Denver saying that it is settled."

William Ferguson & Co., operating the south end of the Zenobia under a lease, have made a pretty rich strike in the west cross-cut at a depth of 350 feet. The vein shows nearly three feet of shipping ore. The grade of the ore will no doubt be better than $40.00 to the ton from the assays taken. The lessees think it is one of the best finds ever made on that property. A trial shipment will be sent out in a few days.

The Valley City lease on the Shurtloff sent out the regular shipment of three carloads of ore the middle of the week to Florence. Now the lessees are figuring on installing a large hoisting plant and put in a gauge for hoisting purposes, as the present facilities are not up to the requirements of these gentlemen. The ore production can be more than doubled with the proposed addition to the hoisting plant.

HEARING IN GOLDEN CYCLE TRANSFER COMES UP TODAY

Yesterday was a quiet day as far as the Golden Cycle controversy was concerned. While the matter continues to be an interesting topic of conversation in the mining offices no new move was made by either side. Neither side has any further statements to make in the matter and it will lie quiescent until 2 o'clock this afternoon when the hearing of the defendants' request to have the case transferred to the United States court will be held before Judge Seeds in the district court of Teller county. Until his decision is made known in this matter there will be no developments.

LA LUZ PROMISES TO PROVE A BIG SHIPPER

One of the local companies operating in the historical Guanajuato mining district, Old Mexico, is the La Luz, which is largely owned in the office of Edsall, Key and company. The company has offices in Boston, also, several Boston gentlemen being connected with it. The outlook for this company is so promising that plans are being perfected for the erection of a $100,000 mill at the mine. The mill will be of 40 stamps and will handle in the neighborhood of 100 tons of ore in 24 hours. No expense will be spared in the construction and equipping of this mill as the ability to treat ore cheaply and on the spot is one of the essentials of successful operation in this district. The La Luz company has sent out two shipments recently, one of which was of $50 ore and the other of $100. Ore of this value is only found in opening up new drifts as the former operators gouged out all the richest ore above water level. They left in the mine vast quantities of ore which could not be treated in their day but which can now be milled at a profit. They also have thousands of tons of ore upon the dumps, the greater part of which can now be treated. The ancient Mexicans were also ignorant of cross-cutting and this mode of operation is now opening up valuable new ore bodies. The La Luz gives promise of becoming one of the big shippers of the district.

ARKELL LEFT YESTERDAY FOR NEW FIELD OF WORK

Edwin Arkell, who has been prominently identified with the mining business in this city for the past several years, left yesterday for Reno, Nev., where he will assume the management of the Consolidated Nevada Mining company's property. This property is largely owned in this city, the following named gentlemen being connected with it: William Dissman, C. W. Kurie, W. E. Turley, E. S. Bach, Percy Hagerman, Mr. Sutton and others. Mrs. Arkell and the two children left several days ago for California, where they will remain until after the first of the year and possibly all winter. Mrs. Arkell has not been in good health for several months past and goes to California in the hope of receiving benefit from the climate. The property with which Mr. Arkell is to be connected is a promising one and he will give all his attention to developing it. Mr. Arkell announced before leaving that he was not removing from this city permanently but will undoubtedly return here later. Mr. Arkell has been prominently connected with Cripple Creek mining and still has extensive interests there which prevent his leaving Colorado permanently. During his absence the transfer of stock in the Arkell companies and other details connected with their management will be in charge of F. H. Dunnington.

ELKTON CUTS THOMPSON VEIN IN THE SEVENTH LEVEL

As was announced in these columns a few days ago, the Elkton company has had a force of men at work in the seventh level drifting south towards the Thompson claim in the hope of opening up at that depth the vein upon which Lessee Wright is working in the upper levels. This vein has now been cut and a considerable ore body opened up, although its extent has not yet been proved. Shots are now being placed on all sides to prove the width of the body at that depth. Such ore as has been taken out runs as well as that being produced by Mr. Wright and there is every reason to believe the Elkton company will be able to send out some good shipments from this vein. Mr. Wright has a lease upon the claim which permits him to work it down to a depth of 500 feet. This gives the company the right on it below that depth. This gives them a chance to operate at two levels above the water and when the projected tunnel drains the mine they will have this vein an additional 250 feet, unless it pinches out before reaching that depth, which it now gives no sign of doing.

GOOD REPORTS COME IN FROM RIO HONDO DISTRICT

Albridge C. Twining of Asbury Park, N. J., president of the Fraser Copper company of the Rio Hondo district, Taos county, New Mexico, has just visited that property in company with a party of stockholders to the number of eight or 10. This party is now at the mine for the purpose of inspecting the new smelter and watching the first operations. All of these gentlemen express themselves as greatly pleased with the showing of their property which they believe will become a great producer.

O. H. Stanley of this city, who is manager of the American Consolidated Mines company, another Rio Hondo property, and one that is largely owned here, writes that the prospects for that mine are exceedingly bright, it never having looked better during its existence. This district is now assured railroad facilities. The building of the projected line will open up an immense mineralized territory, both placer and lode mining being pursued. The company expects to erect a concentrating mill of either 50 or 100 tons capacity as soon as the snow ... the American Consolidated company expects to effect ... with the Fraser company to treat its concentrates at the Fraser's new smelter. The latter is of sufficient capacity to handle the product of both mines and such as ... will undoubtedly be ... before the new ... operation. The American ... indicated

MINING NOTES FROM OUT OF TOWN

GRAYTON GROUP AT PEARL HAS BEEN INCORPORATED

The Grayton group of mines in the Pearl mining district, about three miles north of that town, formerly owned by C. B. Ayers, has been incorporated under the name of the Grayton Copper Mines company, with headquarters at Denver and Grand Encampment. The Grayton company is developing the property in a thorough and systematic manner, with results that are most gratifying to the owners and to all others interested in the district. Although no deep prospecting has been done on this group, surface indications and showings made on adjoining claims justify the belief that it will develop into a producer of exceptional value. Three well-defined veins are known to cross the property, and where opened show considerable copper ore of good value. In one of these openings ore running 17 per cent. copper was found at grass roots. Lead and silver ores will undoubtedly be found with depth, as the formation and surface indications are identical with those at the Big Creek mine.

STRIKE AT SILVER CLIFF TURNS OUT LOW GRADE

According to the Silver Creek Rustler, the recent gold strike near that place is turning out to be a low grade proposition, but the quantities of ore in the ground give promise of the Gold Wonder becoming a big low grade mine. Messrs. Jackson and Haskell are working away with great diligence on their recent strike on the Gold Wonder claim, and are getting the property in shape so that it presents the general appearances of a mine rather than that of a prospect. The working shaft, which was 10 feet deep when they began work in it, has been pushed down to a depth of 35 feet and the ore continues to improve in value as progress is made.

Dr. Bain, whose ability to assay cannot be questioned, by reason of his long service as head assayer of the Philadelphia smelter at Pueblo, the first of the week, in company with Mr. Jackson, took an average sample of a carload lot of ore that is in the bins ready for shipment, and together they made a double check sample of it, which resulted in the finding of gold values of $14.05 by Mr. Jackson, while Mr. Bain's average was from 25 to 50 cents higher. Mr. Bain has checked on Mr. Jackson's assays several times and invariably sustains his results.

The returns from the carload shipment to the smelter were received last night, but as they were unsatisfactory the figures will not be given out at the present time. It wasn't expected this first car would much better than pay expenses, but future shipments will be of much better grade. The ore, while showing no startling figures, all assays gold, and that a big low grade mine has been discovered is almost beyond question. The ore averages far better than either the Treadwell mines of Alaska, or the Homestake in South Dakota, and if it continues to great depth there is a possibility of the Gold Wonder being their rival in production, for the ore body is of great proportions.

The discoverers are doing their own work so far as possible, in order to thoroughly acquaint themselves with the various kinds of rock that they may know which may be shipped at a profit. Messrs. Jackson and Haskell have been too long in the mining business to do things hastily, their every move being made is from a business point of view, and when they get ready to block out and ship ore extensively, you will hear some of the wise ones saying, "Why, I knew from the beginning that that was a mine."

WASHINGTON MINE GIVES PROMISE OF SUCCESS.

The Washington mine near Granite, is one of the most interesting properties in that section, says the Leadville Herald-Democrat.

This property is located on the west slope of the Mosquito range, almost two miles east of Granite, 18 miles south of Leadville, and about the same distance from Buena Vista. The property consists of two full claims of 300 by 1,500 feet being the Washington and the Smuggler, carrying the well-known Washington vein for 3,000 feet. This vein is a strong fissure and is one of the most marked fractures in the entire district. The property lies on the summit of Yankee Blade hill, in the center of the volcanic disturbance. In fact, this hill is seamed and ramified by any number of strong veins and dikes, and has been without question the center of the great disturbance from which all the veins were formed. The mineralization on this hill is more pronounced than anywhere else in the district, and there is every geological condition present to indicate that immense bodies of pay low grade ore, together with a splendid supply of very high grade ore exist in this hill. The veins have a general northeast and southwest trend and are intersected by immense porphyry dykes running generally northwest and south, a condition paralleling that existing in the Cripple Creek district. Indeed, without attempting to borrow feathers from the great gold fields of Teller county, there is much in common in the surface showing at Granite with those prevailing at Cripple Creek in the early days. At both the 125 and the 175-foot levels the vein has been opened on its strike for 300 feet continuously in ore. The vein in all the three levels is marked by a peculiarity that characterizes all the veins of this district to a greater or less degree, namely there are rich streaks of sulphide ore carrying an abundance of free gold in them, that materially increase the value of the ore when the rock is broken together. In the Washington mine the streak is from 12 to 18 inches wide and yields average values of better than $100 a ton. The rich streak is getting larger and stronger as new levels are run out at depth. These streaks bear an important relation to the development of this mine, and for that matter of all the mines of the Granite district; for as in the case of the Washington, there is enough of value in these streaks in the average case to pay all the mining and operating expenses of the mine, leaving the mill dirt to earn the profits for the company. And this constitutes an ideal situation.

As is well known, the Washington mine is owned in this city. Among those interested in this coming mine are: C. E. Noble, C. C. Hamlin and James M. Parker and Eugene A. Sunderlin of the Colorado Securities company.

[illegible] CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. The genuine article may be bought anywhere of all reliable druggists at fifty cents per bottle. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only.

COLORADO SPRINGS MINING STOCK EXCHANGE

Colorado Springs, Nov. 21.—The mining stock market fell away again this morning and was unsatisfactory both in volume of business and prices. In the mines list advances were rare, a general weakness being manifested throughout the trading in the mine stocks. Findley made a fractional gain and Portland advanced from 1.93 to 1.99. These were the only gains in the list. Acacia was fractionally lower, Elkton fell back to 25½ and El Paso lost to 63. Gold Dollar Cons. was fractionally lower. Golden Cycle, Isabella and Lexington were stationary. Among the preferred prospects it was little better. Blue Bell and Sunset-Eclipse lost fractionally and Little Puck and Mariposa gained in a like degree. In the prospects list Cadillac lost, Kitty was stationary and Gold Hill gained to 1 cent. Zoe was stationary.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

EASTERN MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Report to Ladenburg, Thallmann & Co., to Otis & Hough.

New York, Nov. 21.—Throughout today the market has shown a decidedly strong undertone. In the morning hours there were certain periods during which some hesitancy was noticed by reason of the rather heavy selling of stocks for London account, amounting to fully 45,000 shares, but the offerings were well taken and on persistent buying by the short interest as well as fresh buying for the long account, advances were scored throughout the list. There was a general feeling of good cheer throughout the market, the tendency appearing to be toward a higher level. The railway issues were strong and active, the feature being the bull manipulation in these. Dealings in Manhattan fell off perceptibly after a further advance during the early morning and the stock became quiet. Money on call continued easy around 4 per cent. Demand, $4.87 to $4.87¼.

Notwithstanding the tightness of time money, there is a growing feeling that monetary conditions will steadily improve and this feeling is responsible for greater confidence in the outlook for the stock market than has existed for many weeks, hence good houses look for small reactions and believe that on these, stocks should be bought. As bearing on the financial situation it is pointed out that in two important respects the banks are in a much stronger position than they were a year ago. Their surplus reserve is larger and loans are smaller than in 1901. It is a fact that last year in November, time money was tight, yet in that period were laid the foundations for the bull movement which materialized a few weeks later. Circumstances, which in the opinion of critics, now point to recovery in market values, are the liquidation that has taken place in the past six weeks, the fact that stocks are in the hands of powerful interests, favorable crop influences and the reasonable certainty that freight rates will be advanced. This means that earnings will be maintained and in some cases increased.

If as well informed people anticipate there is to be a gradual revival in speculation, the latter is likely to center largely in four railway stocks which have had heavy declines, but which are bound to show in their earnings the favorable effect of existing traffic conditions. These are Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio and Union Pacific. It is argued that at going prices these shares are on a fairly reasonable basis from which to start a rise and that in all of them there is a considerable short interest.

There was a story afloat at the close of the market that the Deutsch bank people had bought two million of the new Rock Island securities.

CHICAGO GRAIN & PROVISIONS.

Furnished by Otis & Hough, Bankers and Brokers, 127 Pike's Peak Avenue.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Wheat—Liverpool, ¼ to ⅜ lower. Paris unchanged to ⅛ lower. Market was much quieter. It still feels the effect of Armour selling and traders are naturally in doubt as to what he will do next. There was a good cash demand in Duluth but considerable portion of the wheat is said to be for this market. The cash slow. The May and December spread was a little wider. We see no evidences of any concentrated holdings of December wheat. There is still a large scattered interest in the December wheat which is likely to liquidate within the next two weeks. We advise holders of December wheat if they desire to remain long to change to May. While we see nothing particularly urgent in the world's wheat position either way, this market is likely to continue nervous, and a scalping market is probable. The Modern Miller is bearish and reports farmers still offering wheat. Estimated cars, 60.

Corn—Liverpool ½ to 1 higher. Market here was unsettled but closed weak. There was less urgency to cash demand and the edge seems off the December position for the moment. There was further large covering of May shorts early and the local scalping trade was helping the advance. Many of these purchases were for sale before the close. We see no reason to change our previous views in respect to May corn. There is not enough in the position to justify buying it on the bulges, but considering the premiums for cash corn and the January delivery, we are inclined to think that purchases of May corn on sharp reactions won't hurt and that ultimately the price will go higher. There is some complaint of rotting and loss of corn both in the fields and cribs. Estimated cars, 260.

Oats—There was a little better cash demand for oats and this induced the sharp covering of shorts in December. Market did not hold all the advance, however, and the closing was a little soft. Trading is of a general character and otherwise without feature. Estimated cars, 180.

Provisions—Market was light. Receipts hogs again larger than expected and it was the cause of the weakness. Volume of trade not large and the market possesses but little of interest in way of gossip. Local feeling is that early movement of hogs will be small and there is fairly good demand of January stuff in consequence.

DENVER MARKET.

Denver, Nov. 21.—Cattle—Cattle receipts continue liberal, about 1,000 arriving for yesterday market, the bulk of which came in late. The market opened a little slow, but towards noon it became more active and a fair amount of business was done. The general quality of the offerings was not very good and high prices were not reached, the bulk of the cattle selling at less than $3.75. The supply of killers is light and the quality only fair. Some fairly good cows sold at $3.15 and a few steers sold at $4.00, which was the top on beef stuff. The feeder and stocker market was only fairly active, with the bulk of the steers selling at $3.50 to $3.60. The prospects were for heavy trading yesterday, as buyers are in need of the cattle and are disposed to pay what they are worth. There is very little stuff on the market that could be called good and there was nothing fancy on sale. Prices are steady on all classes of offerings and the choice kinds are very firm, with the tendency upwards. Receipts for the balance of the week are not expected to be very heavy and the market will no doubt continue in good condition and prices firm. All the eastern markets report steady to firm prices, with fair receipts.

Hogs—There was a fair run of hogs in, and under a good demand a clearance was made early. Prices ruled steady to strong and $6.35 was the top price paid, with bulk selling at same figures. The general quality of the offerings was good and river prices were paid.

Sheep—Sheep receipts were light, but the offerings were liberal, as the trainload that arrived Wednesday were still on the market, with prospects of them selling here. A few feeder lambs sold at steady prices; $3.50 being paid for a bunch that averaged 44 pounds. The demand continues strong for choice muttons and fair for feeders.

BRADSTREETS REVIEW.

By Associated Press.
New York, Nov. 21.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

Favorable conditions still govern the trade situation. The mild, open fall weather is complained of as restricting the movement of winter goods at retail and delaying collections at a few points, but it is not to be forgotten that present temperatures favor the continued growth of the cotton crop and a larger yield than heretofore expected, while it is enabling the railroads to make a far better fight against the prevailing freight congestion than was earlier deemed possible. Export trade returns look better than preliminary reports foreshadowed. Agricultural products, owing to high prices, have gone abroad in smaller volume than expected, but there is evidently a large movement of manufactured goods.

The railroad situation is certainly a remarkable one. The complaint is no longer one of car shortage, lack of motive power or even of insufficient yard facilities. The fact is becoming appreciated that the business offered to the railroads is so large that means must be devised to meet such conditions.

The iron trade situation is rather stronger than a week ago.

Wheat, including flour, exports for the week ending November 20, aggregate 5,277,872 bushels against 4,440,160 last week, and 5,518,330 in this week last year.

Wheat exports since July 1, aggregate 108,862,324 bushels against 122,470,348 last season and 75,293,287 in 1900.

Business failures in the United states for the week ending Thursday, November 20, number 201 as against 205 last week, and 223 in this week last year.

For Canada for the week 19 against 10 last week.

COLORADO CITY, NOV. 22.

BRIEF CITY ITEMS

FRIDAY DANCE—The regular Friday evening dance at Waycott hall last evening was largely attended and all report a good time.

MEETINGS CLOSED—The evangelistic meetings at the First Baptist church were concluded last night. Rev. Mr. Carpenter spoke to a large audience on "After the Harvest."

KICKED ON THE KNEE—Mr. Martin Drake, the real estate dealer, was painfully but not seriously injured by a kick on the knee received yesterday from his horse which he was grooming.

MOVES TO THE SPRINGS—The Baltimore Oyster house on North Fifth street, which has been located here but a short time, will be moved this week to Colorado Springs, into the room now occupied by the Little Gem restaurant.

W. OF W.—Woodmen of the World and Women of Woodcraft lodges held a joint meeting at W. O. W. hall in the Waycott building last evening. The early portion of the evening was devoted to literary entertainment, which was enjoyed no less than the elegant supper by the ladies at the conclusion of the exercises.

SHOWING SAMPLES HERE—The Standard Clothing company is today making a large exhibition of ladies' coats, under the direction of Mrs. J. H. West, the western representative of the New York firm of Singer Bros. Mr. West is a brother of Mr. Charles West, now with the Standard.

KNELLER-GORDON—The marriage of Mr. Thomas Kneller and Miss Goldie Gordon of this city took place Thursday evening at their home on Sheridan avenue. A number of invited friends were present and enjoyed an elaborate wedding supper after the ceremony.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Jesse Ott has returned from Kansas City.

Mr. Anthony Bott returned yesterday from Denver.

Mr. W. H. Barrows, general agent of the New York Life, returned from Denver yesterday. He goes to Basalt this evening on further business for his company.

Scott Case Has Given [illegible]

After a trial lasting three days, the case of John A. Scott vs. the Denver & Rio Grande Railway company was last night given to the jury. They deliberated for a time and upon reporting that they were unable to reach a verdict were turned over to the bailiff and taken to the jury rooms at the county jail for the night. A verdict is expected before noon today.

The greater part of yesterday was devoted to the closing testimony for the defense, the instructions from the court and the arguments of the attorneys. Scott is suing for $50,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received in jumping from a train which had got beyond control on Cumbres pass two years ago through defective air brakes. The trial has cost considerable money as witnesses were brought here from the southwestern portion of the state to testify.

"AMERICA'S GREATEST RAILWAY" Is a significant name, the right to which is much in controversy. "The Rock Island System" has grown to a magnitude of more than eight thousand miles, covering an area of nearly two million square miles of fertile and productive territory, and its service has kept pace with its growth.

Philosophy and Ping Pong.

(Copyright, 1902, by Caroline Ticknor.)

One of Cousin Miranda's admirers is a tall thin college professor, and I don't know when we had such fun as we did when he was taught to play "ping-pong." (says the heroine of Caroline Ticknor's social satire, "Miss Belladonna.") One evening when he came to call, Mercurius and I listened to all he said, or rather to all that we could stand, and we decided he was the most uninteresting talker we'd ever heard. He went on telling about the work he does hammering off pieces of rocks and seeing what they're made of, and writing down his thoughts about the way they're formed in a kind of receipt book he's going to have printed if he can find a publisher who wants it. Goodness knows how Cousin Miranda could listen to all the stupid things he said; I suppose if a person admires you it doesn't matter how poorly they talk, for you can just keep thinking of what good taste they have and needn't really hear a word they're saying. Why, that professor kept on describing his "aim in life" and his "devotion to the cause of science" instead of his devotion to Cousin Miranda, and told how many rocks he had chopped up, until Mercurius and I couldn't bear any more of it.

And all the while Cousin Miranda looked just as pleased and interested as if she enjoyed every word, and never yawned but once, when he was looking in his pocket for his old notebook. That's one queer thing about her, she seems to act as if she liked the stupid people better than the real interesting ones, and yet I know she doesn't.

You should have seen how bored she acted when a nice handsome navy officer came out one afternoon. I was right close beside the door in the next room and couldn't help hearing the conversation, and I could see the way she looked right through a hole in the portiere which was cut by Mercurius when Mr. Jaffrey was calling on Cousin Marie Louise. That navy officer is the kind of a caller I want when I grow up. He never spoke of any dull old books, or what he "most desired to accomplish," or told about hammering up pieces of rock, I rather guess not. He sat down on the sofa beside Cousin Miranda, and said she was the "best thing he had seen since landing in the country," and that her "eyes were bluer than the ocean, which had the finest color in the world," and that no matter where he sailed the tones of her voice were louder than the waves, or something of that sort. I tell you it was splendid, and sounded like the stories mamma says I'm too young to read; and yet it had no more effect on Cousin Miranda than the professor's rocks, nor half as much. She acted as cool and disagreeable as anything, and never once looked at him as pleasantly as she did at that old professor; but after he had gone she stood behind the curtain and watched him down the street, and then she went and looked at her front hair in the long mirror, which was the only way she made me think she liked the officer the best.

I wish you could have seen the stiff professor try to play "ping-pong!" The last time that he came to call he was just getting ready to tell about the rocks he had been hammering, when Cousin Miranda beckoned him to come into the dining-room. He looked quite pleased at first, as if he was expecting to find welsh rabbit or ice-cream, but when he found that it was "ping-pong" he tried to make excuses. He said he never could play games (which any one would know to look at him), and that he'd rather watch, and that his arm was lame from hammering up rocks, but Cousin Miranda would not let him off, and both Mercurius and I stayed by to see the fun. When the professor found he'd got to play whether he wanted to or not, he tried to make the best of it and show how smart he could be; and such a figure as he was, hopping about and whacking at the balls.

"Not so hard," Cousin Miranda would say to him, dodging the balls he batted directly at her head, "these are not rocks that you are hammering."

I never saw any one so awkward as that professor was. He lost his balance, and nearly knocked the ice-pitcher on to the floor, and hit his elbows against the side-board, and crawled round picking up the balls, and I could see him getting crosser and crosser underneath while he was trying to keep pleasant outside, and his high collar melted down, and he took off his cuffs and kept wiping the perspiration from his forehead.

Cousin Miranda kept telling him that he was doing finely and would soon be a champion, but all the while I could see she was laughing inside at all his antics, and I believe she was getting revenged for all the time she'd had to listen to his stories about the rocks.

His eyeglasses kept dropping off, and he came very near smashing them with his foot, so that he tried playing without them, but he was so near-sighted he couldn't see the balls, and so finally got out a pair of spectacles and put them on. He looked so much more comical in those that even Cousin Miranda couldn't help smiling, though she pretended she was amused because Mercurius had choked himself eating a piece of ice.

Cousin Miranda can play the game so well that she can beat most any one, and as for that professor, she never gave him one moment's rest. Mercurius never offered to pick up any balls for him, and I, being a girl, never pretended to do it; so we sat there on a little table, and watched him jump around, and every few minutes he would lose a ball and have to get down with a cane to poke under the side-board, and I could see how stiff his knees were when he got up again. Just as he was reaching under the table for a ball, that navy officer was ushered in, looking all cool and smiling, and Cousin Miranda said how nice it was, for now she could watch a game between two of her friends.

Then the professor hopped up so quickly he bumped his head under the table, and said he thought he'd made enough of an exhibition of himself for once and he'd be going. Then he shook hands, and never even smiled when he bid Cousin Miranda good night and he walked out of the dining-room without his cuffs, and on the way stepped right on a ball and crushed it all to bits. He never turned round to apologize, but stamped off down the hall, and then Mercurius and I were sent to bed, though we teased to stay and see one good game between Cousin Miranda and the officer. That old professor never came once again to call, and I don't know that I much blame him.

But the young navy officer came a good many times, because he was so interested in playing "ping-pong," and I heard mamma saying that when he came he never seemed to know when it was time to go. And I heard her complaining to papa that she was tired of chaperoning such stayers-on, and that she even doubted if "ping-pong" would prove a blessing to our household.

"Yet it is quite a game," I heard papa remark, and mamma answered, "Is the game worth the candle?"

"Yes," papa said; "but I have my doubts if it is worth a candlestick that was the choicest heirloom in the house."

BRIEF CITY ITEMS

WEATHER FORECAST.
Washington, Nov. 21.—Forecast for Colorado: Fair in west, snow in east portion Saturday; cooler. Sunday fair with warmer in east portion.

Satisfied people wear Ashby's spectacles.

Our coffee talks. McGregor Cafe.

PLAZA HOTEL—Reduced rates for winter. J. M. Ward, manager.

ART NEEDLEWORK—Designing and materials. Room 151 the Antlers.

One of the most popular things in the city, the 25c meal at the McGregor Cafe. Opposite the postoffice.

EMBROIDERY STUDIO—Free lessons with materials in heavy conventional and Mount Mellick work until Xmas only. 120 North Tejon street, upstairs.

POLICE COURT—Mike Conley and John Dunn were fined $10 in the police court yesterday for drunkenness, and Frank Tuller and Charles Mapleston were assessed $20 each for vagrancy.

GOLF PLAY TODAY—Town and Gown Golf club will hold a tournament this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The tournament will be of 18 holes, and the entrance fee consists of a Haskell ball.

WARRANTY DEED—By a warranty deed, filed in the office of the county clerk yesterday, Frank C. Cassiday has sold to James Benson lot 22, block 108, Colorado City, for a consideration of $2,250.

PRIMARY UNION—The primary union meets every Saturday at Christian church. Normal lesson at 3 p. m. Chapter at 5. Sabbath school lesson at 6:30 o'clock. Everybody welcome.

CLASS HOP—The class of 1903, Colorado Springs High school, gave its regular fortnightly hop at the Alamo last evening. The attendance was quite large and the students report an enjoyable time.

LOT SOLD—Hastings Bros. report the sale of lot 6 in block 6, in Hastings Bros.' Fifth addition to Colorado Springs, to Frank W. Johnson, consideration $500.

DIED—Miss Alpha May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Furnace of Pikeview, died Thursday afternoon after a brief illness. Miss May was 20 years of age. The funeral will take place from her home at Pikeview this afternoon and the interment will be in Evergreen cemetery.

HIGH FIVE PARTY—Knight Loyal Joslyn gave a high five party at his residence 2016 North Weber street, last evening. A goodly representation from Pike's Peak company No. 16, U. R. K. of P., with their ladies were in attendance. All knights who attended were in full uniform with the exception of side arms.

HANDSOME CHINA EXHIBIT—There are more than 200 pieces in the beautiful exhibit that Mrs. Lula D. Cox, 1320 North Nevada avenue, is now giving of her rare skill in china painting. The exhibit began yesterday and will be continued today. All interested will be cordially welcomed.

FILED AN ANSWER—A. H. Hunt, as guardian and next best friend of Forrest Walker, an infant, yesterday filed in the district court an answer in the suit instituted against himself and ward by E. H. Hotchkiss.

STIPULATION FILED—A stipulation was filed in the district court yesterday between the attorneys for G. H. Parker and the district attorney to hear the motion to quash the information against the defendant Monday, but inasmuch as motions will not be heard at that time the matter will not come up then.

W. C. T. U.—The North End W. C. T. union will meet at the home of Mrs. Young, 332 East Boulder street, Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Griffin, superintendent of work among the miners, will have charge of the meeting. Subject, "Your Duty and Mine." Mrs. Aitken will lead the discussion followed by five-minute talks by Mrs. Conwell, Mrs. Weathers, Mrs. McKinney and Mrs. Alva R. Scott. Mr. Tingle will sing. Other music will be furnished by Mr. and Miss Griffin. Miss Brooks will close the program with one of her choice readings. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Attend the "Blue Ticket" millinery sale now going on at the New York Cash Store.

JUST IN TIME TO PREVENT ARREST.
Yesterday morning quite a crowd gathered at the corner of Pike's Peak avenue and Tejon street. Upon investigating the matter it was found that there was a gentleman discussing as to how he could get to Denver and avoid being arrested, as his mother-in-law was after him, whereon several voices were heard that the Colorado & Southern railway runs trains to Denver most every hour. The gentleman immediately took the next car for the C. & S. depot, where he boarded the C. & S. train for Denver.
P. S.—Don't forget, the C. & S. offers the best service to Denver and Pueblo. There are others, but "none just as good."

INTERNATIONAL STOCK SHOW.
The International Live Stock Show at Chicago opens November 29th and continues until December 6th. Reports from Chicago are that it will be the greatest show ever held in this country and probably the greatest in the world. Extra efforts are being made to accommodate the large number of entries which are greater than ever before. The Burlington route will make a special rate of one fare plus $2 for the round trip for stockmen desiring to attend this big show. Tickets will be on sale November 29th and December 1st and 2d. Final limit leaving Chicago December 8th.

FRIENDS OF THE [illegible] CANAL [illegible] NEW [illegible]

By Associated Press.

Washington, Nov. 20.—The check in the negotiations with Colombia relative to the Panama canal has given great encouragement to the friends of the Nicaragua project and the first evidence of renewed activity on their part was the appearance at the state department today of Senor Corea, Nicaraguan minister to Washington. Secretary Hay has several times called the attention of the Colombian government when the negotiations have lagged to the fact that under section 4 of the Spooner act if he is unable to obtain control of the necessary territory in Colombia by treaty, then he is required to obtain such territory from Costa Rica and Nicaragua. It is now said to be probable that to emphasize his repeated declaration that the action of congress in the passage of the Spooner amendment did not finally commit the United States to the acceptance of the Panama route, Secretary Hay may proceed to draw up a treaty with Nicaragua and Costa Rica and submit it to the senate along with such a treaty with Colombia as he may be able to conclude. In this way the senate itself might decide whether or not the Colombian treaty is satisfactory and if it should decide in the negative then it will have at hand the Nicaraguan-Costa Rican treaties so that there will be no excuse for delay in the canal project.

As for the Colombian negotiations, it can be stated that the United States has now gone to the practical end of the concession it is willing to make. The Colombian minister here has been notified of the decision reached and is expected to make further reply either accepting or rejecting our last proposition. One of the objections lodged by Colombia is the difficulty over the tenure of the United States in the canal strip.

Prominent senators who have been consulted by the state department, have indicated their strong opposition to the acceptance of a hundred years' lease with provision for renewal as insufficient to meet the provisions of the Spooner act. Nothing less than "perpetual control" as set down in the act will satisfy them. The Colombians say that would be a violation of their constitution. But a careful reading of the Colombian constitution by the officials here does not satisfy them that there is any such prohibition against alienation of the territory as is represented.

AMERICAN LEAGUE TO HAVE CLUB IN NEW YORK

By Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Ban Johnson, president of the American Baseball league, who has been in the east for a week, arrived here tonight and made a formal announcement that the American league will have a club in New York next season. Mr. Johnson said everything has been settled practically for the placing of a team there and that the ball grounds there will be among the finest in the country.

REPROACHED SAGASTA.

By Associated Press.

Madrid, Nov. 20.—There was a stormy sitting in the chamber of deputies today. After a speech by Premier Sagasta, in which he expressed surprise at the interpretation which had been given to the recent ministerial crisis, Senor Romero Robledo rose and reproached Senor Sagasta with his political antecedents. He declared that Senor Sagasta was not the leader of a party but the favorite of the king, a statement which occasioned an angry debate.

TAKEN BY A MOB.

By Associated Press.

Wynne, Ark., Nov. 20.—Lige Wells, a negro, charged with assaulting Max Campbell, an Iron Mountain passenger conductor with a knife and slightly wounding him, was taken from the officers tonight by a mob of armed men and it is rumored that he was lynched. The officers had just boarded the train with their prisoner at this point to take him to Forest City, when a dozen masked men entered the coach and forced the officers to give up the negro. The mob left for the swamp country to the south of Wynne with the intention of lynching Wells. Information received tonight tends to show that the mob carried out its plans.

PACIFIC CABLE COMPANY AGREES TO CONDITIONS

By Associated Press.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Clarence W. Mackay, president of the Commercial Pacific Cable company, George G. Ward, vice president, and William W. Cook, general counsel for the company, had an interview today with the attorney-general with respect to the conditions prescribed by President Roosevelt for constructing a transpacific cable. These conditions were approved by the president in July last, since which time the Pacific Cable company has not officially notified the government of acceptance or the willingness to accept them. Today, however, Mr. Mackay explained to the attorney-general that the delay was caused by protracted negotiations, which have only been brought to a conclusion within the last few days, to secure a landing place in China to comply with the president's condition that an independent American line should be constructed from Manila to Hong-kong, thus giving an all-American through line to the Asiatic continent. It was this condition that was supposed to be the one that the cable company would be unwilling or unable to comply with. It now announces its ability and intention to construct a line from Manila to Shanghai, a distance of about 1,200 miles and to have the same completed within a year.

Owing to the claim by the Pacific Cable people that, as they read one of the other conditions, it will practically prevent the necessary relations with existing lines in China to secure the transmission of American messages to interior points, that provision is being re-cast to obviate misunderstandings and will be submitted to the president in a modified form within a few days.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR FEUD.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Nov. 20.—The feud which has existed for some time in the Knights of Labor has broken out afresh and Simon Burns and John Ternan of Pittsburg, Henry A. Hilt, New York, Thomas H. Cannon, Boston, and J. F. O'Meara have been arrested on a warrant charging forcible entry. It is claimed that these men came here from Niagara Falls, where one faction of the knights had been holding a convention, with the intention of getting possession of the headquarters of the organization. It is further charged that they entered the building through an upper window. Secretary-Treasurer Hayes was informed of the movement and he immediately swore out the warrants for their arrest. The cases were called in the police court today and the hearing postponed until Saturday. The men were released on $100 bail each.

FERRY BUILDING AT THE ALAMEDA MOLE DESTROYED

By Associated Press.

Oakland, Calif., Nov. 20.—Fire destroyed the ferry building at the Alameda mole early this morning and nine men, who were asleep in the bunk house, narrowly escaped with their lives. Victor Dellasanta of Alameda, who was a chef employed on a pile driver, is missing and the pile driver was burned. It is feared that he was asleep and perished either in the flames or by drowning.

The fire started on the north side of the building and two hours later it had burned to the water. A portion of the floor, held up evidently by the net work of tracks, still remains, and upon these tracks are the warped and twisted iron work of the passenger coaches which were destroyed. Of the 47 coaches that were lost 16 were broad gauge and 31 narrow gauge.

It is estimated that the loss, including coaches and building, will amount to $300,000. This is the estimate made by Superintendent Worthington of the coast division, of which the narrow gauge system is a part.

The building was erected by the late James G. Fair in 1883 and cost originally $50,000. Three years later it passed into the hands of the Southern Pacific company with the entire road and since then many improvements have been made. Within the last six months the company has built another ship and added improvements to the extent of $75,000.

The origin of the blaze is a mystery. Superintendent Worthington said the matter would be thoroughly investigated. He admitted that a coal oil lamp was left burning on the north side of the building, near where the flames were first seen. It is the theory of the employes of the road that this lamp exploded, thereby causing the disastrous conflagration.

A theory that the blaze was of incendiary origin is not considered seriously by the railroad officials.

THE KAISER IN SCOTLAND.

By Associated Press.

Edinburgh, Scotland, Nov. 20.—Emperor William on his way to Embark on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern, lying in the Firth of Forth arrived at Dalmeny this afternoon and was met by Lord Rosebery. As his majesty's carriage was leaving the station, the horses attached to it became frightened at the waving of the colors of the detachment of the Black Watch forming the guard of honor, and shied, the postilions lost control of the horses, which got mixed up in the crowd. An accident was averted only by the alertness of Lieutenant General Sir Archibald Hunter who seized the horses' heads and managed to control them.

NELSON HERSCH KILLED.

By Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 20.—Nelson Hersch, editor of the Sunday edition of the New York World, was instantly killed near his home at West Brighton, Staten Island, today by being thrown from a buggy. He fell on his head breaking his neck and fracturing his skull. Mr. Hersch was driving home before daylight and his vehicle ran into a ditch, which he could not see. The body was taken to his residence. Mr. Hersch was 42 years old, a native of Rock Island, Ill., and a graduate of Yale, class of '80. He was connected with the Davenport, Iowa, Gazette, and on the staff of the New York Commercial Advertiser for several years. Two years ago he became editor of the Sunday World. He leaves a widow and four children.

CHILEAN MINISTRY.

By Associated Press.

Santiago, Chile, Nov. 20.—The political evolution has brought the Conservative-Liberal coalition into power. The new cabinet, formed yesterday in succession to the ministry which resigned November 15, is presided over by Don Elias Fernandez Albano. Senor Domingo Amunategui is the minister of foreign affairs and Senor Ricardo Cruzat is the minister of finance.

BOILER EXPLODED.

By Associated Press.

Everett, Wash., Nov. 20.—The boiler in the Snohomish power house exploded this afternoon, killing Richard Pughe, an engineer, and badly scalding Adam Anderson. The brick building was totally demolished. Several other employes had miraculous escapes from death. Water is now being pumped into the city mains by a fire engine.

GUN IN COLLEGE FRACAS.

By Associated Press.

Tiffin, O., Nov. 20.—Edward Zechiel of Culver, Ind., and Roy Zachman of Marion, O., members of the freshman class in Heidelberg university, were seriously wounded last night by a shotgun in the hands of a member of the sophomore class. The freshmen attempted to steal the conveyances of the sophomores, who were holding a class party several miles in the country, and were met by the sophomores with the above result.

WEDDING IN BALTIMORE.

A Kentucky Mountain School.

A young teacher in a Kentucky mountain school, himself a mountaineer who has never been beyond the serrated horizon of the native wilds, gives his first experience with the mountain district school, as follows:

"It was in the month of August, 1900, when I came to a district school in Dickerson county. The school house was located near the center of the district. It was a log cabin about 16 feet square. It had scarcely any roof on it, and there were no seats when I first saw it. I visited the patrons of the school and got them to help me repair the house. We roofed it as best we could and made seats, and I prepared to open school the following Monday. I had seen all the patrons and insisted on their sending their children to school, though many of them saw very little use in it. Some of them told me their children were so bad I would never be able to teach, and others appeared to be quite indifferent about the whole matter.

"Of course, we were badly crowded from the start. Sixty children in a room 16 feet square leaves very little space, and by the end of the week the attendance had increased to 75. But the worst trouble came from the lack of books. It was bad enough, parents thought, to send the children to school at all. To supply them with books was out of the question. This I tried to remedy by having those who were in the same class sit and study together, and also by writing their lessons on the board.

"At last the county superintendent came to visit my school. I knew he was not a very good scholar, not much further advanced than some of my own pupils, but his visit frightened me just the same. He came in just before noon. I gave the school up to him and requested him to give us a lecture. He came forward and said: 'All the children who are in favor of having a new teacher to finish the school will stand up on their feet.'

"That was all he said. Luckily for me, none of the children arose, and I remained with this school to the end of the term."—(Ira Clifford in The Pilgrim for November.

What the Federation of Labor has Accomplished.

Some years ago the Knights of Labor numbered 1,000,000, but now their membership has fallen below 200,000. The American Federation of Labor is credited at the present time with 850,000 members. On more than one occasion this body has averted the paralysis of business which would follow a general strike. At Chicago, in 1894, for instance, when the American Railway union demanded a general or sympathetic strike of all mechanics, the executive committee of the American federation rejected the demand. Again, in 1901, when the Amalgamated Association of Iron Steel and Tin Workers asked for a sympathetic strike, believing that with such assistance they would be able to coerce the United States Steel corporation, the American Federation of Labor refused to comply with their request. These facts and figures indicate that, except in a few trades, American labor organizations have hitherto been too weak to dictate terms to their employers; and, secondly, that the dangerous power of ordering a general or sympathetic strike has been sparingly exercised. It is the prudent course pursued by the American Federation of Labor which has led many onlookers to hope, if not to believe, that the United Mine Workers will keep the promise made by Mr. Mitchel in their name—the promise to abide for three years by the decision rendered by a majority of the commission of arbitration appointed by Mr. Roosevelt.—(Harper's Weekly.

Ainslee's For November.

The main feature of the November Ainslee's is a novel, entitled, "A Mercenary Marriage," by Ethel Watts Mumford. Mrs. Mumford has evolved some very dramatic situations, and at the same time has peopled them with characters that talk and act like human beings. The leading comedy personage in the story is a tomboy, drawn with delightful freshness and humor. An excellently amusing story is "The Snub-Nosed Soubrette," by George H. Brennan, who writes of the experiences of a barnstorming manager evidently as one that knows. "The Future Duchess," by Elizabeth Duer, is a pretty drawing-room comedy that reads easily. "Halfyard's Mutiny," by Norman Duncan, is a splendid story of Newfoundland life, into which enter all the feeling and atmosphere of that remote clime. Harvey Sutherland, author of the "Book of Bugs," reappears in Ainslee's with a very amusing essay, entitled "The Hole in the Saucepan." "Among the Philistines" by Herbert E. Hamblen, is a dramatic account of the trials of an inventor who gets into the toils of capitalists. "The Confessions of a Society Woman" is an anonymous contribution that is well written and interesting. "A Bachelor's Cost of Living," by George Barry Mallon, is very well done, and contains information that is very suggestive. In all, Ainslee's has 39 distinctive features, including in its list of names Robert Hitchens, Lloyd Osbourne, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Caroline Duer, E. S. Van Zile, Joseph C. Lincoln, Carolyn Wells, Duffield Osborne and others. 160 pp., 15 cents. Ainslee Publishing Co., New York.

[illegible] Was a Feature at St. Mary's Fair Tonight

Shakespearean tragedy, minstrelsy and ballad singing were combined on the program at St. Mary's fair at Temple theater last night. It was a program that appealed to all classes and the performers were warmly applauded and had to respond to encores.

The first surprise of the evening was the work of Mr. George D. Kearns of the Baxter-Kearns Mercantile company, in his readings from Shakespeare. Although Mr. Kearns has resided in this city for some time, even his intimate friends were unaware of the talent he possesses as a reader, which he has hidden through his retiring nature. His work last night was equal to the best that has been done on the professional stage in this city. His interpretation of "Clarence's Dream" was characterized by such sympathy with and realization of the sentiment as to cause the audience which at first was moving slightly and murmuring in low conversation to subside into almost absolute stillness. The applause that broke the silence at the close was so strong as to compel Mr. Kearns to reappear, and as an encore he gave a part of the "Ghost Scene," from "Hamlet," which also was characterized by vividness that held the audience spellbound.

Much was expected from Mr. F. H. Morgan, the tenor soloist, and in his rendition of "The Old Black Shawl," he fulfilled all expectations and was accorded warm appreciation from his listeners, who insisted on another song. Mr. Morgan responded with "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms," singing Moore's beautiful ballad with rare expression.

Clint Draper, the ever popular comedian, aroused the large audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm by his original songs. He made two appearances, the second time appearing as a minstrel and giving his inimitable buck and wing specialties and minstrel songs.

The booths were well patronized yesterday and the dancing was enjoyed by a crowd that completely occupied the large area. Dietrich's orchestra furnished the strains that lured the feet to terpsichorean pleasure. A fine music-box loaned by the Knight-Campbell Music company, was a new feature in the doll booth last night. The interest in the popularity contests was high. Miss McAdams maintained her lead over Miss Myles, while Miss Quinlin made a decided gain during the evening.

Tonight, by special request, Clint Draper will give some more of his specialties and Grant Pauley will sing some of his comic songs. Another big crowd is expected.

The Part of Wealth in Human Progress

Its Contribution to the Solution of Problems of Society.

PAPER BY GEORGE BACON PRICE

Read Before the Unity Club Last Night and Followed by an Interesting and Instructive Discussion—At All Souls' Church.

At a well-attended meeting of the Unity club, held at All Souls' church last evening, the principal feature was a paper on "The Contribution of Wealth to Human Progress and to the Solution of the Social Problems."

The paper was a most ably prepared one and was heard with great interest and profit, Mr. George Bacon Price being the writer. At the conclusion of its reading a discussion on the subject took place, Dr. E. G. Lancaster, Mrs. Scott, Rev. Alva Roy Scott and others participating.

The following is a brief abstract of the paper of Mr. Price:

"What has wealth contributed to human progress? The productiveness of humanity has depended upon their wealth. The wealth of individuals reacts on the nation. Real wealth consists in the resources of a country, and of a people.

"Wealth in the concrete has not always consisted in the same thing. Among some early peoples, wealth was in cattle. In Athens, in beautifully built temples and statuary. In Egypt, in temples and numberless slaves. In time of Roman empire, wealth greatly increased. Rome was the inheritor of all that had gone before. Ours is of all past increased a thousandfold. Material, intellectual, aesthetic. In the United States in 1890, it was estimated at 64 billion dollars. Wages alone in one year, seven billion dollars and more. In savings banks are $484 to each depositor. One hundred millions were given in one year by a few rich men to education and morality. Education, the chief factor of progress, is based on money; it costs money.

"Agencies of progress are telegraph, railroads, papers, books. It takes money to maintain these.

"Take wealth away, note its effects on a nation, education, industries, art, literature would cease. Man would take a swift plunge downward.

"The cause of panic is a temporary withdrawal of money from circulation. Let money return and prosperity begins anew.

"Wealth necessarily accumulates in the hands of men most energetic and forseeing in promoting the great industries and public enterprises. These men do often go into these enterprises for philanthropy. These men aid community by enterprises. There are said to be 3,500 millionaires in the United States. These men, however, in many places are asking how to bestow their wealth best to aid humanity.

"How will wealth affect the future generations? There are dangers in the concentration of wealth. It is possible for them to make it easier for man by encouraging invention and discovery. Also by pure philanthropy. All good enterprises depend upon these men of wealth. So all good philanthropies. There needs to be established specialized chairs of medical science for prevention of disease and all evils."

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR THE M'KINLEY CLUB BANQUET

All arrangements are now complete for the banquet to be given Monday evening by the Young Men's McKinley club to the Hon. Franklin E. Brooks, congressman-at-large-elect. The banquet promises to be one of the most notable affairs of the kind ever held in the state. Mr. Brooks is himself a comparatively young man and was the founder of the club two years ago, when Mr. McKinley was a candidate. He has always taken the greatest interest in the affairs of the organization, which, during the recent campaign, worked hard for his election. It is therefore appropriate that the club members should honor their fellow member in some manner and a banquet is probably the most fitting method. The affair will be held at the Alta Vista hotel and aside from the spread there will be a number of addresses, including one by Mr. Brooks. President C. W. Helser of the club will act as toastmaster.

A MODERN COAT TALE AND HOW IT CAME OUT

While Ed Whiteley, clerk in the office of Grant Pauley, city ticket agent for the Colorado Midland was engaged yesterday in the interesting occupation of cleaning the back room, he was called from his duties by the telephone bell.

"Hello, this is [illegible]'s pawn shop," said a voice. "There's a man in here wanting to sell a couple of overcoats and I find the card of Mr. Pauley in the pocket of one of them. Have you missed any coats?"

"Wait a minute. I'll see," replied Whiteley and he went to the [illegible] where his own coat and [illegible] to Mr. Pauley had been hanging a few moments before. He was back at the 'phone in [illegible].

"I should say we have; hold the fellow and I'll be right down with a policeman," he shouted into the receiver.

"All right," came back the voice, and then Mr. Whiteley proceeded to give a description of the coats including a pair of gloves which were in the pocket of his own. The voice at the other end assured him that he undoubtedly had the right coats and would hang onto the man until he came.

While Mr. Whiteley was standing in the door looking for an officer, Tom May came along with a couple of overcoats in his arms and Whiteley threw up both hands. It appears that Mr. May had stepped into the Midland office and seeing a chance had appropriated the overcoats and going into the Colorado & Southern office next door had used the 'phone.

"You were a sucker for not soaking them," said Grant Pauley, when told about it.

"CORDOVE" GAVE ALL CONCERNED A TOUCH OF THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

Frank Van Meter Played the Role of "Humpty-Dumpty" and Grant Pauley Felt Like "The Owl and the Pussy-Cat."

"Cordove," the vest-pocket-edition horse which is confronted during the greater portion of its waking hours with the painful necessity of dragging Grant Pauley, city agent of the Colorado Midland railroad, around in a "one hoss shay," figured in a couple of startling adventures yesterday, which involved Mr. Pauley and Frank Van Meter.

"Cordove" is about as big as a minute and used to be a show "hoss" when "Billy" Moreland was gallivanting about the country with his trained animals. It is of color mottled black and white and of disposition humorous. At least it so indicated yesterday. "Cordove" must have been the clown in Moreland's show and was probably merely dreaming about the days gone by when it had other missions in life than assisting in the conduct of the Colorado Midland road and its friends.

Mr. Van Meter borrowed the rig from Mr. Pauley to take a little jog about the city. Mr. Van Meter also invited a little girl to accompany him on the said jog. On North Nevada avenue they came across a house on wheels which was being moved to another location. "Cordove" had never noticed houses under such circumstances before and he bolted. The shafts flew up in the air and the bed of the cart tilted backwards. Mr. Van Meter and the little girl were tumbled out on the ground and the Shetland started for the suburbs as fast as he could move his dinky legs. Before he had gone very far he was captured by a city fireman.

Later in the evening Mr. Pauley started home behind "Cordove." There are no kinks or turns in the pony's temper that Mr. Pauley is not fully apprised of and while he was somewhat astonished on learning of his behavior with Mr. Van Meter he had decided that it was altogether due to the negligence of property owners in moving houses without first notifying "Cordove." Ruminating thus and also meditating on business he might have done if Mascagni hadn't canceled his engagement here, he urged "Cordove" into a hasty walk. Then Mr. Pauley found himself in a muddled heap in front of North park, while "Cordove" was quietly moving away with the shafts of the cart and the wheels and gazing back at his master with considerable astonishment. The body of the cart had slipped off the wheels and had deposited itself with Mr. Pauley in the middle of the road. The spectacle of a distinguished looking young man sitting in a small cart box upon a public thoroughfare and muttering an unintelligible harangue to himself was rather startling to the wayfarers.

As soon as Mr. Pauley's mind had fully grasped the situation he extricated himself from the box, captured "Cordove" and started for a repair shop.

SYRACUSE LODGE HAD SMOKER LAST NIGHT

Syracuse lodge No. 111, Knights of Pythias, gave a decidedly successful smoker and entertainment in Knights of Pythias hall last evening. It was one of the most largely attended affairs of the kind ever held in the city and was thoroughly enjoyed by those present. The attendance numbered about 350, including a large number of members of Myrtle lodge No. 14.

An impromptu program was carried out, consisting of music, both vocal and instrumental, and there were numerous other features which added to the interest of the evening. Not a moment was permitted to drag, and when the guests dispersed at a late hour they heartily voted Syracuse lodge members royal entertainers. During the evening "Gene" Dement served elegant refreshments.

Y. M. C. A. SOCIAL TONIGHT WILL DRAW BIG CROWD

The regular monthly social of the Y. M. C. A. will be given at the rooms this evening by the young ladies of the First Presbyterian church. All are invited to attend. The hours of from 8 to 10 will be strictly observed. A splendid program has been arranged. It will commence with a new and unique game entitled "Who Is Who." The glee club will render a selection, Miss Short will give a reading, Mrs. Seldomridge will sing and the quartet will also be on hand. Ice cream and cake will be served.

Kentucky Mountain Schools.

One of the chief difficulties with the district schools in the Kentucky mountains, according to the testimony of the teachers themselves, lies in the indifference, not the poverty, of the parents. The majority of the latter neither read nor write, and are often actually averse to the education of their children. Thus, a school district including about 100 children will frequently give an average attendance of not more than 30 scholars, and to increase the number practically means to educate the parents into seeing the value of a school at all. The man who goes out to his days' work with axe at side and rifle on shoulder, as all his ancestors have done before him, questions the utility of confining his child for months to a laborious struggle with book and pencil, especially if he has to buy the latter. This sentiment, or lack of sentiment, is the bane of the educator who strives to lift up the standard of his profession here; and to this condition, together with the faulty teaching prevailing in the schools themselves, is being attributed more and more the lawlessness and crime that have made these mountain regions notorious and given them the unenviable right to the title, won in the first chapter of their history and never since revoked, "The Dark and Bloody Ground."—(Ion C. ## Judge Cunningham Issues Injunctions Against Officials to Prevent Sale

OF OLD-TIME BONANZA MINES

Mollie Gibson and Argentum-Juniata Properties Subject of the Controversy That Has Found Its Way Into Courts of This District — The Facts Involved.

Judge Cunningham of the district court yesterday issued temporary injunctions against Sheriff P. F. Irving and County Treasurer W. H. McNichols of Pitkin county to restrain them from selling at a tax sale today the property of the Mollie Gibson Consolidated Mining and Milling company, and the Argentum-Juniata Mining and Milling company. There are three cases in all whereon the injunctions were issued, all directed against Irving and McNichols. In one the Argentum-Juniata company is plaintiff alone, in another the Mollie Gibson company is alone the plaintiff and in the third the two companies together are plaintiffs.

The complaints in the various cases are long, but the facts alleged in each are about the same. In the Mollie Gibson case it is asserted that McNichols as county treasurer issued in last September a distraint warrant commanding the sheriff to distrain the property of the company for taxes and interest in the sum of $1,344.24. The sheriff took possession of some machinery and office fixtures in the Aspen bank building belonging to the company and is now advertising the same for sale. The plaintiff denies owing any taxes excepting upon one horse and wagon and one engine listed in its schedule of 1900 and 1901 and it claims that it proffered a reasonable sum of money in settlement of the same which was refused by the treasurer. In June, 1900, it is alleged, the plaintiff made out a schedule of property owned by it and the gross proceeds of the ore mined and after it had been returned and filed the assessor inserted therein the sum of $3,000 as the value of improvements on the Silver King lode owned by the company as well as $200 as the value of improvements on the Mollie Gibson.

The board of county commissioners, sitting as a board of equalization, added to the schedule the sum of $12,500 for what it designated as machinery. The company filed a protest and the matter came before the board twice but both times was taken under advisement and it is asserted that the records do not show that any final action was ever taken. The plaintiff asserts that under the law which was then in force, improvements or machinery was not assessable; that the improvements were permanent, being in the nature of buildings and that the machinery consisted of fixtures attached to the land and therefore to be valued only for taxation upon the basis of the gross proceeds of ore derived therefrom and it is claimed that no authority of law existed for imposing a further taxation on account of improvements or machinery.

In June 1901, when the plaintiff returned its schedule the assessor added $4,000 as the value of improvements on the Silver King and $200 on the Mollie Gibson and assessed the plaintiff corporation for $16,665 as the value of machinery. It is claimed that this assessment was under the new revenue law which was afterwards declared invalid. The plaintiff claims that taxes due from it do not exceed the sum of $4,500 which it has offered to pay, but which has been declined. It claims that part of the property which has been taken belongs to the Argentum-Juniata company and that the plaintiff is only part owner in the pipes, rails, etc., which have been seized; that the cars seized were never owned by the plaintiff nor were they in Pitkin county on the first days of May, 1900, or 1901; that they were built especially for the plaintiff corporation's mines and that there is no market or demand for the same in Pitkin county. The complaint states that although there are two daily papers published in Pitkin county the only manner in which the defendant is advertising the property for sale is through notices posted at the mines, at the court house and at the postoffice.

It is asserted that Irving, the sheriff, has no property which would compensate the plaintiff for damages on account of the sale if it is made; that his bond is inadequate for such compensation and that the affairs of Pitkin are such that a judgment against it could not be satisfied without a multiplicity of suits and great delay; that by the action of the county commissioners the plaintiff has been deprived of a remedy, if any, fixed by the laws of Colorado for the protection of its rights in the premises and that the plaintiff has no legal or adequate remedy excepting by a court of equity.

In the suit of the Mollie Gibson and the Argentum Juniata company it is asserted that the sheriff has taken 24 "Fruevanning" concentrating tables. The plaintiffs are willing to pay the sum of $10,203 taxes. In the suit of the Argentum-Juniata company it is stated that machinery has been seized, the plaintiff asserts a willingness to pay taxes to the amount of $5,700.

A [illegible] VALUABLE BOTTLE OF SWAMP-ROOT [illegible]

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of the Gazette May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

W. F. Lohnes, a prominent business man of Springfield, Ohio, writes the following strong endorsement of the great kidney remedy, Swamp-Root, to the Editor of the Springfield, Ohio, Republic:

"Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 21st, 1901.

"Having heard that you could procure a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, free by mail, I wrote to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle and it was promptly sent. I was so pleased after trying the sample bottle that I sent to the drug store and procured a supply. I have used Swamp-Root regularly for some time, and consider it unsurpassed as a remedy for torpid liver, loss of appetite and general derangement of the digestive functions. I think my trouble was due to too close confinement in my business. I can recommend it highly for all liver and kidney complaints. I am not in the habit of endorsing any medicine, but in this case I cannot speak too much in praise of what Swamp-Root has done for me."

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

EDITORIAL NOTE—If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the wonderful discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp-Root, and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives to the great curative properties of Swamp-Root. In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say that you read this generous offer in the Colorado Springs Daily Gazette.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

UNIONIST MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT WAS STONED

By Associated Press.

Belfast, Nov. 20.—Mr. Russell, the Unionist member of parliament was stoned by a mob after he had addressed a meeting at Dromore last night. The rioters attacked the hall where Mr. Russell had made his speech and caused him to seek refuge in a neighboring house, whence he tried to escape in a carriage. The mob discovered him and bombarded the vehicle with stones. Mr. Russell was struck on the head but was not serious injured.

Thomas W. Russell, Liberal-Unionist member for South Tyrone, began another land campaign near Belfast early in October. He declared that 80 per cent of the landlords were ready to sell their land under a fair scheme and suggested a new basis for land purchase under which the state would give $50,000,000 for the benefit of the landlords. Mr. Russell is opposed to home rule for Ireland.

LEOPOLD'S COMMENT ON ANARCHIST'S ATTACK

By Associated Press.

Brussels, Nov. 20.—King Leopold made a somewhat striking reply today to a deputation from the chamber, headed by the president, who presented his majesty with congratulations on his escape Saturday from an anarchist's bullet. After thanking the deputies, the king continued:

"The times are very troubled. Agitators are constantly stirring up their followers to disturb that order which is the guarantee of public liberties. Without order only license remains, which leads inevitably to despotism. These agitators find in their path firstly the heads of states. If they fail to reach them they attack their wives, as in the case of the horrible drama at Geneva. Their blows are also aimed at ministers, as in the case of Senor Canovas and they also blow up the houses of private individuals. They want to intimidate us, but they will not succeed. Even if they struck down the head of the state, it would make no difference, as he would soon be replaced. In addition to revolver shots they employ the pen, which can write what calumnies they please. I am nearing the end of my life. I do not know how long I shall live—how long they will let me live, but I can assure you all the rest of my existence will be devoted within the limits of my constitutional powers to the good of my country and the protection of its liberties."

The dates of all lectures are not absolutely fixed in order that conflicts with other events may be avoided.

NO TRACE FOUND YESTERDAY OF THE NEGRO FUGITIVE

Although the sheriff's officers and the police officers searched all day yesterday no trace has yet been found of Burr Kennell, the negro who attempted to assault Mrs. Ben Ashenfelter at Palmer Lake, Tuesday night and who was run out of town after being severely beaten by a crowd of men.

The officers are convinced that Kennell got into Colorado Springs and is now in hiding in this city. He has lived here and is quite well known in the city. Chief of Police King and Detective Atkinson went for quite a distance out along the Rock Island Wednesday and are convinced that Kennell did not go that way. The Palmer Lake people should have held on to Kennell as his attempted crime would gain him a long term in the penitentiary.

THE VOTE ON THE AMENDMENTS.

THERE ARE MANY very interesting facts to be observed in connection with the vote on the constitutional amendments that were submitted to the people of the state at the last election.

It is known in a general way that all of the amendments, except the Bucklin bill, were approved by a very large majority, and as the precise vote in any county made very little difference in the total result, the returns on the amendments were very slow in getting in and have not yet been completely tabulated.

One of the most evident facts in this connection is that the voters of the state do not appear to have had the slightest difficulty in marking their ballots according to their desires. In El Paso county for instance, there were 4,364 votes for the Rush amendment, and 655 votes against it. For the eight hour law there were 4,661 votes and 707 against it. For the Bucklin bill there were 2,131 votes and 6,666 votes against it. It is evident from these figures that 2,000 more votes were cast on the Bucklin bill than upon either of the other propositions, but there is not the slightest indication that the voters found any difficulty in carrying out their intentions, and the number of spoiled ballots was not considerably larger than in ordinary elections.

Of the 24 counties whose returns on the Rush amendment are now before us, only two, Douglas and Huerfano, voted against it, while in most cases the majority in its favor was very great.

Returns are at hand from 28 counties for the vote on the eight-hour law, and of these only four counties declared in the negative, the majority in most cases being much larger for the eight-hour law than for the Rush bill.

The vote on the Bucklin amendment is particularly interesting. We have received official returns from 30 counties upon this amendment. These returns do not include Arapahoe, Delta, La Plata, Pueblo or Summit counties, but do include the other large counties of the state. The total vote for these 30 counties is 15,619 in favor and 35,869 against. The cities and the farming regions voted strongly against the bill, while in the mining counties the vote was more in its favor. Six counties out of the 30 on our list voted for the bill, viz: Clear Creek, Dolores, Lake, Pitkin, San Juan and Teller, and these counties presumably, if the amendment had passed, would have exercised their right of local option, and would have exempted land values from local taxation. Whether the single tax theory could have had a fair trial in a mining county where the amount of agricultural land is very small, and where the great bulk of the property is in buildings, stocks of goods and undeveloped mines, is a question whose discussion is of some interest, but of no practical value at the present time. The average vote on the bill in the ordinary counties was about in the proportion of two to one. In El Paso county it was about three to one. Some of the agricultural counties like Larimer and Otero gave a vote of ten to one against the proposed law. In Huerfano county the vote was 2,146 against and 33 in favor, while Conejos did even better with a vote of 2,132 against and 62 in favor.

The results show very clearly that there was not any real danger of the passing of this amendment at any time, although if it had not been for the effective work done by the Anti-Bucklin league, the result would doubtless have been very much closer, and if the people had been indifferent or had not been aroused to an understanding of the exact significance of the bill, it might have slipped through.

The very general opinion is that the people of the state ought not to be called upon to discuss and to decide so many important constitutional questions at one time. The action of the voters in this particular event appears to have been a wise one, but this is not sufficient evidence that the amendments received sufficient consideration. The action of the Republican state convention in expressing a positive opinion upon most of the amendments was doubtless responsible in a large measure for their indorsement by the people. If there had been only one or two presented for consideration, the voters would not have been satisfied with this, and would have gained a more exact knowledge of their provisions and of the arguments for and against them.

In the case reported from New York, where a 3-year-old boy died from the effects of a fly bite the usual course of nature was reversed. In such cases it is usually the fly that dies. However, the incident may serve as a useful warning of the danger of infection of various kinds from these too common insects, which are now recognized by science as one of the greatest of household dangers.

In recalling the events of the late campaign it should not be forgotten that a considerable share of the credit belongs to Mr. P. B. Stewart of this city. He has been an able, clean and devoted representative of the president and has at all times stood firm for the interests of the party in preference to the ambitions of all self seekers.

AN EASTERN VIEW OF STATEHOOD.

THE FOLLOWING editorial, from the New York Mail and Express is fairly typical of the eastern attitude toward the admission of the territories of New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma to the union of states. In fact there are many eastern journals that do not take so reasonable a view as does this one, and are inclined openly to oppose the admission of "raw" western territories.

"The senators will probably come to Washington with their minds made up on the "Statehood" question; but nobody knows yet just how their minds are made up. It is certainly a matter of interest to the rest of the country, and particularly to the people of the imperial state of New York, to know whether fewer than half a million people in Arizona and New Mexico are to be represented by four senators while more than seven millions in this state are represented by only two. It is also of interest to them to know whether the somewhat sparsely settled region of great possibilities that lies between Arkansas and the panhandle of Texas is to be represented perpetually by two senators or four. The people of New York do not call on their senators to oppose the admission of either one of the proposed new states. But we fancy they are puzzled to know why the three propositions should be tied up in a single omnibus measure, evidently calculated to compel a union of all influences favorable to either one of the three territories. And we are quite sure that they do not want to see the measure carried through with undue haste.

"The question should be solved with regard to the permanent interest of the whole country. The two political parties can be safely left to work out their own future in all three of the proposed states—or all four of them, if the Indian Territory is ever to come in as a separate state, which we very much doubt. The Republican party is certainly capable of taking care of itself in them all. It has never asked, through its platforms or its spokesmen in congress, that a territory which was fairly entitled to statehood should be denied it because it was Democratic, or likely to be so. But the party is doing its duty by the people in insisting that every statehood proposition shall be judged on its separate and individual merits."

If there is a seeming injustice in the representation of seven million New Yorkers by two senators, while a half million persons in Arizona and New Mexico are represented by four senators, it is an injustice that is inherent in our form of government, and one for which the people of the east, rather than the people of the west are to blame. The same objection has been made at the time of the admission of every territory, and in the case of nearly every territory the objection is being rapidly outgrown by the state.

The serious objection and injustice are not in the case of the giant territories of the west, any one of which, even Nevada, will in the near future possess the population and the wealth sufficient to qualify it for an honorable position among the sister empires of the American republic, but in the case of the little states of the Atlantic seaboard some of which are already hopelessly left behind in the march of progress.

If the people of the east are willing to discuss seriously the proposition to unite New England, to join Pennsylvania and New York and to wipe out the boundaries of some other states, making them counties like many counties of the west there will be a reasonable basis for reform. This is not likely to happen, and in the meanwhile the three remaining continental territories will be admitted on an equal footing with the thirteen original states and the thirty-two that have been admitted since the organization of our nation.

The arguments that are being used against Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona have been employed against every territory that has sought admission to the union, and they will hardly be effective against the three that remain.

MAKING A RIVER RUN UP HILL.

IN THE CASE now pending before the supreme court of the United States, the state of Kansas contends that the people of Colorado have no right to divert the waters of the Arkansas river in any way that will interfere with the natural volume of the stream in Kansas. In other words they hold to the old legal doctrine of riparian rights, while Colorado pins its faith to the newer doctrine of useful appropriation which has become established as the practice in the arid regions of this country.

There are two serious inconsistencies in the Kansas position which will in time be brought to the attention of the honorable judges of the supreme court.

If Kansas supports the riparian rights theories as between the states, she must in justice maintain the same theory as between her own citizens. She cannot claim that Colorado has no right to make an appropriation for beneficent use, when at the same time she gives to Mr. A in Kansas a preference over Mr. B of the same state. But if Kansas does not recognize the right of useful appropriation as between her own citizens, then it is impossible for her to establish an irrigation system, and she can make no beneficial use of the river water that she claims is being wrongfully held back from her citizens.

The other inconsistency of the Kansas position is that if Kansas has superior riparian rights over Colorado for the use of the waters of this stream, then Arkansas has rights superior to those of Kansas, and Louisiana has rights superior to those of Arkansas, and the people of the last named state have the right to prevent the diversion of water from the Ohio, the Mississippi, the Missouri, or any tributary stream.

Certainly no just benefit could be gained by thus reversing the course of nature and giving to the people at the mouth of the river rights over those dwelling at its source.

That the Kansas people have some ground of just complaint cannot fairly be denied, and congress certainly ought to take some action in regard to the waters of interstate rivers in the arid regions. But this is a matter to which riparian rights have no reasonable application, and they cannot be considered in the matter without great confusion and injustice.

Farming surely does pay, at least sometimes in the newspapers. For instance a potato grower in Fifeshire, England, is said to have sold several tons (?) of a new variety of potato at the extraordinary price of $5,600 per ton. In the second season the same variety was sold at the rate of $2,500 per ton.

A farmer in New York state recently used a horse whip with good effect on a ghost that had been terrifying the neighborhood. The life of the modern "spook" is a risky one and it is not surprising that they are not as numerous as they used to be.

FROM THE PRESS OF THE NATION.

COST OF COAL ... MINING.

Some Interesting Figures Gathered by the Board of Trade — Advantage of the United States Over England.

(Boston Herald.)

The British board of trade has published some tables regarding the average price of coal at the pit's mouth in the different great coal producing countries, as well as the number of tons turned out on an average by a single miner in a year. This report gives the price per ton in shillings and pence, but we have turned it into dollars and cents at the rate of 24 cents to the shilling and two cents to the penny. India shows the lowest average price at the pit's mouth, $1.05 per ton; second comes the United States, $1.33; then follows Australia, $1.52; Austria-Hungary, $1.78; the United Kingdom and Germany, each with an average price of $2.25; New Zealand, $2.40; France, $2.88 and Belgium, $3.34. The United States and the United Kingdom are beyond all question the greatest coal producers. In fact, in 1900, these two countries produced almost two-thirds of all the coal mined in the world, and since that time the production in the United States has increased much faster than that of any other country. India, with all her low record for cost at the pit's mouth, produced in 1900 only a little over 6,000,000 tons; less, in fact, than was produced in the single state of Indiana. It should also be remembered that this price for the United States is the price of all coal—anthracite and bituminous—while the great bulk of the product in other countries is soft coal. If the cost at the pit's mouth of soft coal was taken for the measure in the United States, it would bring the figures almost down to those for India. Australia, which is third in place, is a rather small coal producer, the figures for 1900, including New Zealand, coming under 8,000,000 tons, though there has been a steady tendency to gain there, particularly in New South Wales and New Zealand.

Turning from cost at the pit's mouth to tons per miner per annum, it will be found that the United States leads with an average of 548 tons. Then follows, but a long way behind, New Zealand with 4?5 tons, Australia 420, the United Kingdom 278, Germany 264, France 206, Belgium 177, Austria-Hungary 163, and India only 76, the production per miner in the United States on this showing being almost eight times as great per annum as the production in India. In commenting on this showing, a British paper said, referring to opportunities for extending export trade: "The question of cost enters largely into the consideration of external trade in coal, but in the matter of cost of production America has greatly the advantage over us (the United Kingdom) on account both of the physical condition of the coal mines, the greater freedom from explosive material, the larger use of mining machinery and the greater activity of the miners." Surely there are reasons enough thus given to account for our enormously increasing output of coal when compared with the other principal coal producing countries of the world.

Leads All the Rest.

(Los Angeles Herald.)

In the recent elections the Roosevelt administration was backed by the largest number of states that has sustained any administration since the era of the civil war. In response to the cry of "no tariff tinkering," as the fundamental policy of the Republican party, 29 states, almost a solid northern column, lined up in the late election for "Roosevelt and the tariff of 1897." The high water mark of 1900 was passed when McKinley was supported by 28 states. In 1896 only 22 states stood by McKinley. Looking farther back we find 20 states to the credit of Harrison in 1888, 18 for Blaine in 1884, 20 for Garfield in 1880, and 21 for Hayes 1876.

The Republican party is stronger now, as indicated by the number of states that have just indorsed it, than it ever was before. The president, his administration, and that great underlying factor, the Dingley protective tariff, are the instruments that have worked out, on behalf of the party, a policy that has brought unparalleled prosperity to the nation. It is in recognition of this mighty achievement that 29 American states, substantially the great north, have just passed in judgment and awarded the commendation, "Well done, good and faithful servants."

This indorsement is equivalent to a demand for a continuance of present conditions. It implies a desire, on the part of the preponderant element of the American people, for a continuance during another term of the Roosevelt administration and of the tariff that has been the mainspring of its marvelous success.

The Dangerous Game of Chess

(New York World.)

The death of a Minneapolis merchant from apoplexy caused by a bout at chess calls attention anew to the danger of games which demand too close mental effort. A very large number of the masters of chess in particular have died insane, and the stress which menaces the nervous with derangement must in full-bodied amateurs past middle age aggravate an apoplectic tendency.

The advantage of games involving exercise is shown in contrast by billiards. In spite of the bad air in which the game is played, it is beneficial rather than otherwise, though inferior to golf, which with its open-air conditions is well adapted to the needs of men of sedentary habit, if not overdone, as too often it is.

Expert players of chess and other games of concentration, like whist, pride themselves upon the "intellectual" character of their diversions. But for men engaged in absorbing daily pursuits it is not desirable to prolong the strain into the night by a battle of keen wits over a game-board. Perhaps in his fondness for the theater, even for foolish farces and music-hall drivel, the New York business man obeys a healthy impulse. It is well not to work too hard at one's play.

The Kaiser and His Uncle.

(Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.)

Prime Minister Balfour may or may not have told the exact truth when he said that the Emperor of Germany had come to England merely to pay a family visit, but his announcement may be taken as an intimation to the rumor mongers that nothing has come of the kaiser's political propositions to the king, whatever they may have been.

The emperor's visit created the wildest excitement on the continent, and even among the Britons themselves. It was assumed that the visit foreshadowed an alliance between Great Britain and Germany, necessarily against France and Russia, so the French and Russian newspapers were as angry about it, many of the German papers as jubilant and many of the British newspapers as doleful as if the alliance has already been proclaimed, as though the king of Great Britain has about as much power to commit his country to an alliance with a foreign power as has the president of the United States.

The American Press and American statesmen deserve credit for their indifference to this subject. To no nation on earth would a close alliance between Great Britain and Germany be more menacing than to the United States. There would be good grounds for regarding such a development as a preliminary step ... are to clear the ground for that challenge of the Monroe doctrine which the kaiser is strongly suspected of contemplating. But to the clamor raised abroad over the visit of the kaiser to his uncle not one word intimating distrust of the good faith and friendliness of either Germany or Great Britain has been contributed by the United States. Which is as it should be. One good way to avoid trouble is to refrain from hunting it.

The Trust Companies and the Banks.

The trust companies differ from the national banks in the manner of the loans made. They trench little upon the field of the national banks in discounting the paper of merchants based upon mercantile transactions. This is a very important field of banking, has a close relation to the volume of currency required by trade, and is the field which the national banks, when they were first authorized, were expected to occupy. The larger portion of the national banking business is still of this sort, and has grown greatly within the last five years. There has undoubtedly been a feeling here and there, however, that the national banks since the rise of the trust companies were relatively losing deposits and losing their share in the large operations which some of the trust companies have found so profitable. It may be said on this head that as much depends upon the personality of the banker as upon the form of banking organization. If a few captains of finance in New York have shown peculiar capacity for drawing to certain trust companies a large volume of business, it is highly probable that the same men would have accomplished similar results through a state bank, a national bank, or a private corporation if the trust company organization had not been directly open to them by law. It is no secret among intelligent bankers that the trust companies which have made the largest profits have not derived those profits from the mere routine of banking. Trust company profits have been derived chiefly from the skill of their officers in financing important combinations and aiding in the creation of new enterprises.

A trust company is better fitted by law and by the nature of its organization for work of this character than a national bank. A national bank has imposed upon it the function of safeguarding the currency. It is forbidden to intrust more than one-tenth of its capital to any single person, firm or corporation. Its resources must be kept in such condition that they can be turned into money on the shortest possible notice. The same is true of such trust companies as pay their deposits on demand, but the trust companies hold many large deposits nominally subject to payment on demand, but which they know are not likely to be called for. If a few drafts are made upon such deposits, they have ample resources for meeting them in their cash deposits with the national banks.—(From "The Growth of Trust Companies," by Charles A. Conant, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for November.

A Child of Nature.

"Did you like Mr. Cross very much, Tonette? No, no—honor between friends," Laura coaxed. "He told me he asked you to marry him, dear—why do you make wry faces?"

Tonette seized a knee in her clasped hands and rocked to and fro reflectively.

"I'm glad I didn't like him," she said. "I mean in that real serious way, 'cause he talks 's much 's a woman. To do you that, did he? I suppose he knows you right well—of course. Did he tell you what I had to say about it? Yes? Well, I reckon he would. I didn't like him like you, 'cause there's only one of you comes in a box. You could beat me and I'd lick your hand like a dog, Miss Laura. That ain't how I liked Bryan. He's brave; I'll say that. I slipped and rolled in the river when it was all rushing snow-water, rippin' its way through the rocks. And he run along on the bank and got even with where I was in the water and jumped in and pulled me out. I was stunned by hittin' a rock, and was heavy as a deer's carcase, and he havin' to fight for his own life all the time; but he saved me. After that, when I come to, lyin' in his arms—oh, whatever's the use, Miss Laura? It's all so useless—like a shot that don't hit nothin'; gone quick and best forget, 'cept between me and him."

"No, go on, please. I am very much interested."

"Well, after he saved me and after—something else he done—if you must know, he kissed me there! After that, I thought I maybe belonged to him; he maybe liked me a lot, I thought. So that was why I always reckoned if I did come east and he should have kept on likin' me, and should, maybe, ask me—why then it would be my duty. You can see how it was, can't you?"

Laura nodded.

"But when I did come on, it got in the papers, and he said my character was gone, and his sister would die, and he'd been ruined, same as I was already. And then he turned—and I'll give him credit where it's due—and he says, 'Never mind me or my sister; first thing's you.' That's where he was brave again. Then he spoiled the whole of it. 'I've done this thing,' he says; 'I kissed you as I didn't ought to,' he says, 'and you've followed me here on account of it. I seen I was a fool, but I done it, and it turned your head, and now all I can do is to marry you. I must pay for your folly,' says he, 'rather 'n harm you worse.' Miss Laura, that was how he insulted me! He flung himself at me like a bone thrown to a wolf in a cage. I was so hot I exploded. 'I don't need savin' 's bad 's you do,' I says. 'I've took care of my character 18 years all right, and I ain't so afraid of its spoiling on my hands as you are of yours. You kissed me?' I says. 'You never. You hain't seen the day you darst kiss me,' I says—and God's got to forgive me for that, 'cause I was only lyin' to protect myself. 'I'd have shot you,' I says, 'if you'd even brushed me with your face.'"—(From "The Millionaires," by Julian Ralph.)

King Edward and McKinley.

Yes, there was the king and the golden coach of state. A large, heavy man with whitened beard, bowing slightly, as if swaying in sympathetic movement with the coach. His large full blue eyes were stolid, he turned slightly, but his nods and bows were enough. The cheers and hurrahs were heartfelt—I felt my hat going off and I cheered with the rest. That pleased Baird. The band played and the people sang, "God Save the King," and the only words I knew to that tune were, "My Country 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty," and these words I sang. The scene brought to mind the times I had often seen McKinley riding out and bowing to the people. His bow was princely, graceful; it went directly out to the people. King Edward seemed like some Americans recently elected to office, who are ruggedly honest and earnest, but lack the unstudied grace of McKinley; and yet that man and what he represented was as dear as life to the phlegmatic Englishmen.—(Joe Mitchell Chapple in November National.)
